Commentary and Analysis

Wheat

Platts European Wheat Daily Commentary

- Milling wheat marker drops $2/mt on June 24
- Heat wave drives MATIF wheat to 3-week high
- EU soft wheat exports reach 22.73 million mt

The milling wheat marker declined by $2/mt day over day on June 24.

According to a trader, the offers are going down for FOB NOVO, with July prices at a $2/mt premium to August.

MATIF wheat prices surged significantly amid growing concerns about hot, dry conditions in Europe, with September Euronext wheat hitting a three-week high as traders evaluated the potential impact on crop yields.

The French wheat market firmed on June 24, with both FOB and CPT prices up by Eur4/mt as a worsening heat wave across Europe heightened concerns about crop damage.

A French broker said there is now significant damage to spring wheat, with corn and sunflowers facing a dangerous period. Another broker said corn is about to begin flowering, adding that temperatures around 40 degrees celsius are particularly harmful.

Meanwhile, the European Commission reported that EU soft wheat exports since the start of the 2025/26 season in July reached 22.73 million mt as of June 21, up from 21.22 million mt a year earlier.

Platts Asia Wheat Daily Commentary

- Australian wheat eases
- Australian container offers see larger declines versus bulk

Australian Premium White and Australian Standard White with no protein guarantee both fell $1/mt day over day June 24 to $273/mt and $268/mt, respectively, tracking lower value indications and extended weakness in the Australian dollar.

Several Asian and Australian trade sources said a softening Australian dollar has pressured cash wheat prices, with offer indications drifting slightly lower since the start of the week.

The Australian dollar dipped below 69 US cents — hitting an 11-week low — and was trading at 68.97 US cents at 4:30 pm SGT (0830 GMT).

Two Perth-based trade sources said they observed an uptick in regional interest in bulk shipments of Australian wheat, including from Indonesia and the Philippines, though buying indications were still well below current CFR offer levels.

Meanwhile, two Southeast Asian flour millers said that bulk offers of Australian wheat have seen smaller declines than container offers, potentially due to rising liquidity and selling pressure on East Coast-based exporters, which is a major container grain export hub for Australia.

Platts Canada Wheat Daily Commentary

- August offers jump as exporters remain short, producer selling low
- Canadian basis levels unchanged amid low market activity

Platts assessed Canadian Western Red Spring Wheat 13.5% FOB Vancouver 30-45 days forward at $267.04/metric ton on June 24, $2.57/mt lower than June 23 as futures inched downward and limited activity kept basis levels stable.

Market engagement remained sparse as Canadian farmers continued to hold inventory following recent sharp price declines, leaving some exporters short of product for August and September shipments. Offers for August loadings were heard as high as 115 cents/bushel over the December (Z) MIAX Hard Red Spring Wheat futures contract, equivalent to approximately 138 cents/bu over the September (U) MIAX HRS contract. Most offers throughout the week were heard around 115-120 cents/bu over U for August.

"It's dead," a US trader said about the market. "[Exporters] cannot buy from producers. The railroad is providing very cheap rates for August, but without a consumptive bid and without liquidity at origin – nothing really matters. [Exporters] would rather not sell short and are shifting basis to the December contract instead," he added on the steep increase in offers from a roll to the December contract.

A Canadian-based source confirmed that farmers remained slow to move grain following recent market declines. However offers in the U plus 115 cents/bu remained plausible for exporters who are not short.

"Farmers remain slow to sell, forcing some exporters to increase rates to Canadian traders," he said, adding that some exporters who are short and have a vessel waiting could be willing to increase basis to that level. "Depends who you talk to," he added, commenting on the wide range of offers given current illiquidity.

Corn

Platts Asia Corn Daily Commentary

- Asian corn prices stable at $261/mt
- South Korean feed demand steady

Asian corn prices were stable June 24, with destination markets remaining muted while sellers kept offer levels firm.

Platts assessed feed-quality corn CFR Northeast Asia unchanged day over day at $261/metric ton for cargoes arriving over Sept. 22-Oct. 22.

Indicative offers for corn to South Korea were reported in the mid-$260s/mt CFR, with only South America-origin available, while the US Pacific Northwest corn supply was tight, traders said.

"I also heard US PNW offers disappeared," said a South Korea-based local trade agent.

"The feed market in Korea is relatively stable at the moment with no major issues. Livestock farmers' demand is generally okay," said a South Korea-based feed miller, adding that "feed consumption remains steady."

In China, domestic old crop corn was said to be "mainly driven by port inventories with minor fluctuations and no clear trend. The focus is now on the new crop's yield, which appears to be relatively stable for now," a China-based grains broker said.

South America-origin corn was offered at $257/mt CFR Vietnam for August-September shipment partial cargoes, $1/mt lower day over day, while October-December shipment partial cargoes were offered at $261/mt CFR Vietnam.

US Pacific Northwest corn basis offer indications for September shipment were heard at 155 cents/bushels over September (U) Chicago Board of Trade futures contract, while October shipment indications were reported at 155 cents/bu over December (Z) CBOT.

Platts Latin America Corn Daily Commentary

- Latin American corn prices show mixed trends
- Brazil's June corn exports rise to 774,020 mt
- Argentine buyer interest remains slow on June 24

Platts Latin American corn assessments were mixed on June 24, with FOB Santos prices lower and FOB Up River prices steady.

Argentine FOB Up River premiums for August loading increased due to higher bids. However, according to a broker, buyer interest in Argentina was slow during the day.

The Brazilian FOB Santos premiums for August loading dropped during the day amid higher offers.

The US dollar to Brazilian real exchange rate stood at Real 5.2130/$1 as of 5:30 pm Brasilia time, up 0.25% day over day.

In Brazil's domestic market, prices remained steady in the Sorriso, Rio Verde, and Maringá regions.

Brazilian grain exporters' association ANEC forecast Brazil's June corn shipments at 774,020 metric tons, up from last week's estimate of 597,974 mt and from 568,668 mt a year earlier.

The association projects January-June corn exports at 6.53 million mt, up from 5.66 million mt in the same period of 2025.

ANEC also expects 267,688 mt of corn to be shipped from the ports of Itacoatiara, Santarém, and Barcarena in the week to June 27.

Platts US Corn Daily Commentary

- USDA report due June 30; CERA cuts yield to 185.50 bu/ac
- Corn crop rated 68% good-to-excellent, flat on week

The US corn market remained stable on June 24 as market participants looked ahead to the next US Department of Agriculture stocks and acreage report, scheduled for release on June 30.

S&P Global Energy CERA analysts lowered their corn yield projection by 0.5 bushel/acre to account for fertilizers and other input costs, to 185.50 bu/ac for marketing year 2026-27 (September-August).

Also, based on the recent S&P Global Energy survey and the evaluation of crop developments by early June, CERA updated the US corn planted area forecast to 96.0 million acres.

"Although it is still early in the growing season, the elevated price of fertilizers this marketing year has raised concern over application rates in the US," CERA analysts said, and they noted that weather remained the primary determinant of final yields.

The latest USDA Crop Progress report showed 68% of the US corn crop rated in good-to-excellent condition for the week ended June 21, unchanged from the previous week. However, the rating remained below the 70% good-to-excellent rating reported during the same week in 2025. The gap has narrowed from the prior week, when the comparison stood at 68% this year versus 72% a year earlier.

In the domestic market, sources said that processors were maintaining firm offers because farmers were selling almost nothing, which is supporting prices for July (N) future contracts.

Meanwhile, for the export market, the USDA will release the Export Sales report on June 25, with traders looking for old-crop sales in the range of 0.8 to 1.2 million metric tons for the week ended June 18.

Platts assessed the corn outright price for July shipments to New Orleans under the CIF incoterm at $196.05/mt and for August shipments at $199.90/mt. FOB Gulf for September was assessed at $205.41/mt.

Platts is part of S&P Global Energy.

Platts European Corn Daily Commentary

- Ukrainian corn down $1/mt on the day
- Storage constraints slow FOB POC trading
- July demand winds down as key buyers are covered

Platts assessed Ukrainian corn at $224/mt on June 24, down $1/mt from the previous day's assessment. An offer for July loading was heard for CIF Marmara at $240/mt, normalized to $224/mt, and above a competitive bid for July loading heard for CIF Marmara at $240/mt, normalized to $224/mt.

Market activity in the FOB POC market remained slow as port storage constraints at discharge ports limited new trade. Traders noted that Marmara was bid and offered at $240/mt CIF on the day, but negotiations were dropped because discharge ports are currently holding other grains, leaving no available storage space.

The pressure on prices comes as key destination demand continues to wind down, with most buyers already covered for July.

In the CVB market, prices remained unchanged on the day amid a complete lack of trading activity, widening the spread between the CVB and POC markets.

Market participants confirmed that only one or two old crop sellers remain in CVB corn, with most warehouses having already cleared out inventory to prepare for the incoming new-crop harvest.

Oilseeds

Platts Asia Soybean Daily Commentary

- Trading subdued with zero deals done
- Crushing margins weak, dampens buyer interest

CFR China soybean month-one August shipment was down $2.39/mt on day at $492.82/mt June 24, while basis was down 1 cent/bu at 217 cents/bu over August (Q) Chicago Board of Trade (CBOT) futures.

Overnight, trading liquidity in CFR China remained largely subdued for the second day in a row, with market participants noting that no trades had been concluded.

"There have been no trades; lately the market has been very quiet...there's a lack of enthusiasm domestically. One issue is a slight deterioration in crushing margins, another is the state buyer's reserve procurement inquiries and yet another is the acreage report. So, everyone's probably just waiting," a China-based soybeans trader said.

"The main reason is a lack of soybean crush margins," a second China-based trader said.

According to a China-based soybean trader, 72.6% of the total open demand, at 8 million mt of the August shipment, has been covered as of June 23.

Additionally, 26.4% of the total open demand, at 8.5 million mt, for the September shipment has been covered.

Platts Brazil Soybean Daily Commentary

- Old, new crop shipments traded in Paranaguá
- CBOT futures fall as rains boost US crops, dollar firms

Platts assessed the SOYBEX FOB Santos soybean contract for August loading at $449.30/metric ton June 24, down 46 cents from the previous assessment.

CBOT soybean futures erased early gains and settled lower, as timely rains improved crop conditions in the US, alongside a stronger US dollar and weaker soybean oil prices, analysts said.

Brazilian grain exporters' association ANEC has trimmed its estimate for soybean exports slightly in June to 15.21 million metric tons, from 15.31 million mt previously, although still on pace for the highest volume recorded for the month, it said June 23.

The latest estimate represents a 10.3% increase from ANEC's June 2025 data, according to the association.

Brazil's soybean exports through the first six months of 2026 are projected at 73.95 million mt, up 8.7% over the same period in 2025, according to ANEC.

Market sources expect a strong line-up of soybean vessels in the third quarter of 2026, as China continues to cover its demand requirements for July, August, and September with volumes from Brazil.

Trading activity picked up slightly in the FOB Paranaguá paper market, with trades heard for August and new crop March 2027 loadings day over day.

The US dollar versus the Brazilian real settled at Real 5.2028/$1 at 4:30 pm Brasilia time. Domestic soybean prices were higher in the main producing regions.

Platts US Soybeans Daily Commentary

- Soybean prices show weak export economics
- Crush forecast rises 5M bushels to 2.640B

Soybean price action on June 24 continued to reflect a split between firm domestic fundamentals and weak delivery economics along the export pipeline, as noted by market sources.

"Beans continue to show ugly delivery economics and firm interior processor market; just looking at the USDA's balance sheet shows the reasons for this, as domestic demand is a billion bushels more than export demand this year," a broker said.

S&P Global Energy CERA Analytics raised the crush forecast by 5 million bushels on June 24 to 2.640 billion bushels for the marketing year 2025-26 (September-August). This was offset by a cut to the old crop export forecast by 10 million bushels, to 1.505 billion bushels.

"The market is getting less optimistic about any old crop business from China; their processor market is essentially covered into new crop currently," a source said.

On May 17, the White House released a fact sheet on the US-China talks, stating in part that "China will purchase at least $17 billion per year of US agricultural products in 2026 (prorated), 2027, and 2028, in addition to the soybean purchase commitments that it made in October 2025."

CERA expects China to purchase 25 million mt from the US in MY 2026-27, or about 920 million bushels.

Platts, part of S&P Global Energy, assessed SOYBEX FOB New Orleans for August shipment at $446.71/mt on June 24, down $2.67 from the previous business day. And for CIF New Orleans, the assessment for the July shipment was $440.47/mt, a decrease of $3.03 day over day.

Basis levels in Argentina's FOB Up River and Brazil's FOB Paranaguá markets slid slightly amid lower offers from both origins. Parcels for August shipments were traded in the Brazilian paper market at plus $3/short ton to the Chicago Board of Trade benchmarks.

Market attention has remained focused on wage negotiations for workers in Argentina's soybean crushing industry, as mandatory conciliation ends on June 25. According to local media, some progress has been made in the talks.

Among other topics, analysts at S&P Global Energy CERA said Indonesia's demand for soybean meal might decline amid the rupiah's depreciation and its impact on feed mill margins. The country is a major importer of South American meal.

"In response to the weakening rupiah, the government has proposed to subsidize imported soybeans [...] If implemented, this may ease household cost pressures and support livestock consumption," the CERA analysts said in the Global Soybean Complex Short-Term Outlook report published June 18.

The CBOT August (Q) contract settled unchanged at $302/st.

- Dutch soybean meal prices fall Eur1/mt
- Heat wave drives Dutch corn offers higher

Northern Europe

The Dutch soybean meal market was quiet on June 24.

Platts, part of S&P Global Energy, assessed FOB Netherlands down by Eur1/metric ton at Eur344/mt, with lower offers for August.

A corn broker based in the Netherlands said European sellers are raising their offer levels amid a heat wave. Buyers have slightly increased their bids but are now adopting a wait-and-see approach because they have sufficient stock.

Southern Europe

The Spanish corn and soybean meal markets remained unchanged day over.

Market sources reported a slight increase in corn prices, with offer levels largely unchanged.

Elevated freight rates are contributing to higher corn prices, according to a corn trader.

Meanwhile, Spanish soybean prices declined slightly due to quiet demand observed by market participants.

One trader said broader feed ingredient markets remain weak.

"Domestic feed is still all weaker," the trader said, adding that low liquidity is making it difficult to generate meaningful trade. "The liquidity being so low won't allow for much trade. You'll have to pay too much to do it."

A broker also said the market felt weak, pointing to poor export demand as a key challenge. The broker also said domestic buyers were aware of the lack of export support.

Soybean meal basis values have begun to weaken, particularly in deferred positions, while corn markets have remained relatively steady, the broker said. The source also reported some overseas interest in soybeans but said activity remains below expectations.

Looking ahead, participation could slow further as the July 4 holiday approaches.

"Will slowly start seeing many out of office midweek," the broker added.

Weekly ethanol production for the week ended June 19 was reported at 1.090 million barrels/day, down 1.09% from the previous week, according to the Energy Information Administration.

Platts Asia Palm Oil Daily Commentary

- Palm oil futures fall amid crude decline
- Indian buyers wait for lower price levels

The Asian palm oil market declined June 24, with palm oil futures on Bursa Malaysia falling for a second trading day, amid a recent decline in crude oil prices, which have pressured vegetable oils, while the market continues to monitor progress on Indonesia's B50 mandate.

The benchmark palm oil contract for September delivery on the Bursa Malaysia commodity exchange fell MR26/mt to MR4632/mt on June 24.

The Indian market remained sluggish with no trade heard amid slow-growing demand in the domestic market. Even with the stronger Indian Rupee and current prices at favorable levels for India to purchase, buyers are still waiting at lower price levels to buy larger volumes of palm oil.

"Buyers are waiting to buy larger volumes at $1,200-$1,205/mt price level for east coast India and $1,215/mt price level for west coast India," an India-based trader said.

Platts assessed crude palm oil CFR WC India price at $1,227/mt June 24 for July loading, down $3/mt from June 23, while August shipment was $10/mt higher than July.

Market participants said soybean oil futures remained under pressure from favorable US crop conditions and expectations of ample global oilseed supplies, although physical soybean oil values in South America continued to show resilience amid the decline in futures.

In Argentina, Platts assessed the soybean oil FOB Up River price for August loading at $1,162.94/mt June 24, up $2.87/mt from June 23. The basis for August loading in the Up River paper market was assessed 100 points higher at minus 1,550 points to August (Q) futures at the Chicago Board of Trade.

In Brazil, Platts assessed the soybean oil FOB Paranaguá price for August loading at $1,173.96/mt June 24, down $8.16/mt from June 23. The basis for August loading in the Paranaguá paper market was assessed 50 points higher at minus 1,500 points to the August (Q) futures at the Chicago Board of Trade.

Platts also assessed the soybean oil FOB Paranaguá price for September loading at $1,156.77/mt June 24, down $13.89/mt from June 23. The basis for September loading in the Paranaguá paper market was assessed 20 points higher at minus 1,480 points to the September (U) futures at the Chicago Board of Trade.

Market participants said trading activity remained relatively quiet, with many participants continuing to monitor developments surrounding wage negotiations between Argentine oilseed workers and exporters. A new meeting between the parties is scheduled for June 25, just hours before the expiration of the current mandatory conciliation period.

Despite the continued weakness in CBOT soybean oil futures, basis levels in both Argentina and Brazil have strengthened substantially from the historically discounted levels observed in early June. Traders said the recovery in basis values has helped support FOB soybean oil prices, limiting the impact of the recent decline in futures on physical export values.

Participants noted that the divergence between futures and physical markets remains a key feature of the current soybean oil market. While CBOT soybean oil futures have fallen sharply from the multiyear highs reached at the beginning of June, FOB soybean oil prices in South America have remained comparatively stable as stronger basis levels continue to offset much of the weakness in futures.

Platts Europe Vegetable Oil Daily Commentary

- Rapeseed oil extends gains across forward curve
- Sunflower oil remains supported by tight supply
- Market participants continue focusing on harvest risks

European vegetable oil markets edged higher on June 24, with rapeseed oil posting modest gains across the curve while sunflower oil remained unchanged.

RSO FOB Dutch Mills front-month increased Eur2 to Eur1,156/mt, while second position rose Eur4 to Eur1,155/mt. Third and fourth positions also strengthened marginally to Eur 1,136/mt and Eur1,131/mt, respectively. FOB Black Sea sunflower oil held steady at $1,379/mt, indicating that the sunflower complex remains supported despite a lack of fresh directional catalysts.

The gains in rapeseed oil suggest that market participants continue to focus on tightening nearby fundamentals rather than broader global supply expectations. Recent concerns surrounding average rapeseed yield potential in Ukraine, coupled with expectations of strong competition between exporters and domestic crushers, continue to provide underlying support to the market. The firmness in nearby and deferred positions indicates that buyers remain cautious about future availability as the new crop campaign approaches.

Sunflower oil, meanwhile, remains remarkably stable. The absence of movement in FOB Black Sea values reflects a market that is balanced between limited seller participation and subdued destination demand. Tight sunflower seed availability and low crush coverage continue to restrict offer volumes from Ukraine, while buyers remain adequately covered and show little urgency to re-enter the market aggressively. This equilibrium is preventing significant price movement in either direction.

For Europe, the overall picture remains one of steady support rather than strong bullish momentum. Rapeseed oil continues to benefit from concerns over harvest potential, processor demand and competition for seed, while sunflower oil remains underpinned by restricted availability. The modest gains across the rapeseed oil curve suggest that participants are gradually building in a risk premium ahead of harvest, even as broader vegetable oil markets remain relatively quiet and rangebound.

Argentina oilseed wage talks continue as strike risk enters decisive phase

- Argentina's oilseed wage talks remain stalled
- Unions demand 20% pay raise from exporters
- Strike threat looms as June 25 deadline nears

Negotiations between Argentine oilseed workers and exporting companies remained unresolved June 24, leaving the possibility of labor disruptions in the country's key grain export corridor dependent on the outcome of a final round of talks scheduled for June 25.

Representatives of the oilseed unions and exporting companies met for more than four hours at Argentina's National Labor Secretariat but failed to reach a wage agreement. Both sides agreed to continue discussions during a new hearing scheduled for June 25 at 11 am local time.

The negotiations come as the current mandatory conciliation period expires June 25 at 3 pm, only hours after the scheduled meeting. The conciliation order has prevented unions from taking strike action while talks remain ongoing.

The Federation of Workers of the Oleaginous Industrial Complex and the Union of Oil Workers and Employees of San Lorenzo said progress had been made toward a rapprochement between the parties and described the latest discussions as constructive. Market participants characterized the unions' latest statement as relatively open and flexible compared with previous communications.

Exporters represented by the Chamber of the Oil Industry of the Argentine Republic (Ciara) and the Center of Cereal Exporters (CEC) confirmed that no wage agreement had been reached but said dialogue between the parties had begun.

The dispute centers on union demands for a 20% wage increase, while companies have proposed automatic monthly wage adjustments linked to Argentina's consumer price index.

The negotiations are being closely monitored by agricultural markets because they coincide with one of the busiest periods of soybean and corn deliveries to the Gran Rosario region, Argentina's largest grain processing and export hub.

Market participants said any strike could disrupt crushing operations, port activity and export shipments of soybean products, including soybean oil and soybean meal.

Traders said attention is now focused on the June 25 hearing, which is expected to determine whether the parties can reach an agreement before the mandatory conciliation expires.

SovEcon trims Russia's MY 2026-27 wheat crop outlook on lower acreage

- 2026-27 winter wheat area seen at 15.9 million ha
- Spring wheat area projected lower at 9.9 million ha
- 2026-27 corn output estimated at 14.6 million mt

Black Sea agricultural consultancy SovEcon has lowered its forecast for Russia's wheat crop for the marketing year 2026-27 (July-June) by 1.4 million metric tons to 88.9 million mt, citing a sharp reduction in expected spring wheat acreage.

The new estimate marks a decline from the 91.1 million mt harvested in 2025, according to a report released June 23.

The consultancy trimmed its total wheat area forecast to 25.8 million hectares, down from a previous estimate of 26.4 million hectares and below the 26.9 million hectares planted in 2025.

"This would be the smallest total wheat area since 2014, when Russia planted 25.2 million hectares," SovEcon said in a note.

The downward revision is driven entirely by spring wheat, with area estimates cut to 9.9 million hectares from the previously projected 10.5 million hectares—marking the lowest level in decades. Meanwhile, the winter wheat area forecast remains unchanged at 15.9 million hectares.

Despite the shrinking national crop, SovEcon noted that regional production dynamics will remain the primary driver for wheat exports in MY 2026-27.

"We see production in the South, Russia's main export region, rising sharply to 37.4 million mt from 31.9 million mt last year," said Andrey Sizov, managing director of SovEcon. "That should improve early-season export availability and could add pressure to the global wheat market even with a smaller overall crop."

In the previous season (MY 2025-26), Russia's total wheat harvest was recorded at 91.1 million mt, according to SovEcon.

For the Russian corn crop, the consultancy kept its estimate unchanged at 14.6 million mt for MY 2026-27.

The European Commission's directorate-general for agriculture and rural development, in its May 26 update, estimated total wheat output at 144.22 million mt in MY 2025-26, up 21% on year.

CERA forecast the EU's wheat output at 144.6 million mt in MY 2025-26.

Platts, part of S&P Global Energy, assessed EU 11.5% protein Romanian wheat at $237/mt CVB June 23, unchanged day on day.

ANEC cuts Brazil's June soybean export forecast, still headed for monthly record

- June soybean exports forecast at 15.21 million mt: ANEC
- Soybean meal exports in June surge 47.8% on year
- Brazil corn flow steady as winter harvest draws focus

Brazilian grain exporters' association ANEC has trimmed its estimate for soybean exports slightly in June to 15.21 million metric tons, from 15.31 million mt previously, though still on pace for the highest volume recorded for the month, it said June 23.

The latest estimate represents an increase of 10.3% from ANEC's June 2025 data, according to the association.

Brazil's soybean exports through the first six months of 2026 are projected at 73.95 million mt, up 8.7% over the same period in 2025, according to ANEC.

Market sources expect a strong lineup of soybean vessels in the third quarter of 2026, as China continues to cover its demand requirements for July, August and September with volumes from Brazil.

Platts, part of S&P Global Energy, assessed the SOYBEX FOB Santos soybean contract for August loading at $449.76/metric ton on June 23, up 18 cents/mt from the previous assessment.

Soybean meal

ANEC estimates Brazil to export 2.47 million mt of soybean meal in June, up 47.8% year over year.

If confirmed, June exports would bring the total for the first half of 2026 to 12.88 million mt, up 14.3% from the same period last year, according to ANEC data.

Brazilian shipments of the commodity have been supported by high soybean crushing rates in the country.

In April, crushing totaled 5.60 million mt, according to the country's oilseed crushers' association Abiove, in line with expectations from S&P Global Energy CERA analysts, that projects total processing at 62.50 million mt for the full year.

Platts assessed the FOB Paranaguá soybean meal price for August loading at $337.30/mt June 23, up $4.52/mt day over day.

Corn

ANEC forecast Brazil's June corn shipments at 774,020 mt, higher than last week's estimate of 597,974 mt and up from 568,668 mt a year earlier.

The association projects January-June corn exports at 6.53 million mt, up from 5.66 million mt in the same period of 2025.

ANEC also expects 267,688 mt of corn to be shipped from the port of Itacoatiara, Santarém and Barcarena in the week ended June 27.

Corn exports are moving steadily, with attention focused on Brazil's winter corn harvest.

Platts assessed FOB Santos corn for August shipment at $213.67/mt June 23, up 79 cents/mt day over day.

ANEC said June projections remain subject to revision as the shipping schedule evolves.

Platts Ags EMEA Wheat Daily Rationale

Platts assessed the Milling Wheat Marker at $232.25/metric ton on June 24, down by $2/mt from June 23. Russian 12.5% handysize wheat, assessed at $232.25/mt, was the most competitive wheat out of the three components of the Milling Wheat Marker, which also includes Ukraine 11.5%, normalized to the nearest 25 cents of $237.50/mt when adding May's quality normalization of $6.15/mt, to account for its lower protein content, and CVB 12.5% wheat assessed at $239/mt on the day. This reflects the Platts assessment window from July 22-Aug. 5.

Platts assessed Black Sea wheat (Russian deepsea, 12.5% protein) at $232.25/mt on June 24, down $2/mt, below the offer at $233.50/mt for July and August and above the bid at $231/mt for August. The market is in backwardation of $1/mt the H2 July and H1 August, market participants said. July prices are higher amid a delayed harvest. This reflects the Platts assessment window from July 22-Aug. 5.

Platts assessed Black Sea wheat (Ukraine deepsea, 11.5% protein) unchanged at $231/mt on June 24, amid low demand, market participants said, below an offer at $232/mt. This reflects the Platts assessment window from July 22-Aug. 5.

Platts is part of S&P Global Energy.

Exclusions: No market data was excluded from the June 24 Black Sea wheat assessments.
