Commentary and Analysis

Wheat

Platts European Wheat Daily Commentary

- Egypt trades wheat at $259-260/mt for July
- Jordan buys 60,000 mt at $276/mt August

The Black Sea wheat market was little changed day over day amid limited demand and thin exporters' margins.

The Russian wheat market fell slightly amid bids at $243/metric ton and offers at $247/mt. There were rumors of possible trades of about $243/mt for the July market.

A Russian wheat trader estimated that Russian exporters have faced significant margin losses of over $5 billion due to currency appreciation, while prices haven't risen much. "The Ruble needs to be over Rb80/$1," the trader said, noting that breakeven costs were at $249/mt with the current ruble rate at Rb73.7.

Elsewhere, the CVB 12.5% July market offer was at $245/mt. Ukrainian wheat offers were at $237/mt, compared to June bids at $234/mt.

On demand, the CIF Egypt 12.5% July market was heard traded at $259-260/mt June 2-3. Tunisia is looking to buy 75,000 mt of wheat in a tender on June 4 for shipment July-August. In the last tender, they bought 100,000 mt of wheat on March 31 at an average price of $274.93/mt for the May-June load.

Meanwhile, Jordan bought 60,000 mt of wheat for the second half of August at $276/mt from trading house Buildcom, a source close to the tender process said. The next tender is expected for June 9.

Platts Asia Wheat Daily Commentary

- Australian wheat prices close mixed
- Container, bulk offers of Australian wheat spread narrows

Australian Premium White wheat prices were stable day over day at $282/mt on June 3, while Australian Standard White wheat with no protein guarantee rose $2/mt to $276/mt, above a higher indicative bid and tracking a return in feed wheat demand from regional buyers.

Offers in Western Australia remained largely stable through midweek, according to several trade sources.

"I don't think the market has done much at those levels, as everyone has got very bearish domestically with all the rain we have been seeing," a Perth-based trade source said.

Delivered prices of both Australian and Black Sea wheat were seen softer week over week, with CFR offers down $5/mt and weakness on MATIF futures potentially adding more pressure on Black Sea prices later this week, several Asian trade sources said.

Containerized wheat prices out of Australia are also nearly on par with bulk offers, largely due to improving old-crop liquidity on the East Coast, which is the major container export hub for Australia, a containerized wheat exporter said.

Two Philippine feed wheat buyers issued international buy tenders for Australian feed wheat between mid-August and mid-October shipment, according to several Singapore-based grains traders.

"I think [the tender results] will really set the market for the next month or so," an Australian trade source said.

Platts Canada Wheat Daily Commentary

- Canada wheat prices fall amid weak futures
- Planting nears completion, limited trade seen
- August basis offers rise despite futures drop

Platts, part of S&P Global Energy, assessed Canada Western Red Spring Wheat 13.5% FOB Vancouver 30-45 days forward at $257.30/metric ton on June 3, which was down $3.95/mt from the previous session.

Cash values for CWRS continued to decline, along with steady losses in the futures market.

The July (N) MIAX Hard Red Spring wheat futures contract fell 10.75 cents/bushel to $6.2625/bu, and the September (U) contract fell 10.5 cents/bu to $6.51/bu.

Nearby basis prices have held mostly unchanged amid limited trade activity. "Planting is very near complete. On some product we are seeing some farmer selling, but not on wheat with these crashing futures," a trader said.

Offers for the August shipment were heard 15 cents higher than their previous level, at 75 over the September futures, but value and trade levels had not yet followed suit. "Basis should see a bit of a pop, but it is hard to quantify with the steady futures decline," the trader said.

Corn

Platts Asia Corn Daily Commentary

- South Korean deal anchors market at $263.99/mt
- Silence amid South Korean mayoral election holiday June 3
- Favorable US weather drives bearish sentiment

Asian corn prices extended a decline into the second day amid soft FOB indications and lower deal levels to South Korea.

Platts assessed the feed quality corn CFR Northeast Asia down $2.75/mt at $262/mt for cargoes arriving over Sept. 1 to Oct. 1.

Following the conclusion of the previous day's South Korean import corn tender, two further corn deals on the same day, June 2, were reported to have been inked to two separate South Korean feed milling groups, according to a Japan-based and a Singapore-based trader.

One deal for world-wide origin optionality corn was traded at $263.99/mt CFR Pyeongtaek for Oct. 14 arrival, while the details of the second deal were not disclosed, both the above traders said.

The South Korean market went silent thereafter on June 3 amid the country-wide mayoral elections, and no bids were heard.

However, market participants expect tradable levels to remain around the same level as the most recent deal at $263.99/mt CFR for October arrivals as "[the deal] anchored buyers at that price, people don't want to pay more than others," according to the Japan-based trader.

The most competitive US Pacific Northwest corn basis offer indications for August shipment were reported softer on the day by 5 cents/bu at 130 cents/bu over September (U) Chicago Board of Trade futures contract.

Bearish price sentiment was also attributed to "better weather for crop prospects" and "losses were driven by favorable US weather alongside broader Chicago grains softness as noted with corn down 1 to 2 cents intraday. Demand signals were steady to soft," according to a Singapore-based grains broker.

"Corn prices are about 5 cents/bu higher than last week on basis pricing, but flat prices are similar or lower as futures are very weak. I think the funds are offloading their positions," a second Singapore trader said.

In Vietnam, deals for June shipment part cargo corn in "small quantity" were heard concluded at 218 cents/bu over September (U), even as official offers were reported at 227 cents/bu for the equivalent shipment month.

- Higher premiums in Argentina
- Lower prices in LatAm

South American FOB corn prices decreased June 3, tracking weaker Chicago Board of Trade futures.

Argentine FOB Up River premiums for July loading continued to rise amid higher bids.

On June 2, a trade was reported in FOB-Argentina (2 ports) for July loading at N plus 87 cents/bushel.

The Brazilian FOB Santos premiums for August loading were unchanged during the day.

In Brazil, a trade was heard in Santos for November H1 loading at Z plus 102 cents/bushel.

Platts US Corn Daily Commentary

- US corn prices fall on lack of demand from China: sources
- USDA confirms a 136,000 mt corn sale to South Korea

US corn prices slid June 3, tracking Chicago Board of Trade futures, amid a lack of China buying corn, said sources.

The CBOT July (N) futures contract settled at $4.3150/bushel June 3, down 9 cents. While September (U) futures closed at $4.4025/bu, down 7.75 cents in the same period.

"I think the market is starting to lose hope of China coming in for old crop, and with South America now competitive in corn, I would expect to finally see our values starting to drop," a trader said.

The White House released a fact sheet on the US/China talks May 17, stating in part that "China will purchase at least $17 billion/year of US agricultural products in 2026 (prorated), 2027, and 2028, in addition to the soybean purchase commitments that it made in October 2025."

In the export market, the US Department of Agriculture confirmed June 3 that private exporters had sold 136,000 metric tons of corn to South Korea for the marketing year 2026-27 (September-August).

In the domestic market, sources said that the majority of Mississippi River system loadings are of corn and soybeans, but the river has been slow.

Logistics sources said this week's activity picked up in nearby mid-Mississippi and Cities after a quiet couple of weeks, with grain futures down and limited new export sales.

"We saw July Illinois trading yesterday as shippers look to move inventory over the summer to be prepared for harvest," said a logistics source.

Platts, part of S&P Global Energy, assessed June 3 the outright price for June shipments to New Orleans in the incoterm CIF at $203.75/metric ton and for July shipments at $204.55/mt.

The FOB Gulf price for August was assessed at $211.12/mt.

Platts European Corn Daily Commentary

- Black Sea corn prices fall on weak demand
- Turkey receives 811,183 mt corn in May

The Black Sea corn market declined June 3 amid slow demand and increased competitiveness in destination markets.

In the FOB market, the most competitive offer for July loading was heard at $238/metric ton, while the most competitive bid was at $235/mt. A trade for FOB POC was reported on June 2 at $237/mt for 15,000 mt.

A Ukrainian seller said the decline in Ukrainian offers was due to limited destination options because of CBOT prices.

“At current CBOT levels, Ukraine can only calculate sales to Turkey, and that demand is not sufficient,” the seller said.

In the destination market of Turkey, several CIF Marmara offers were heard during the day, ranging $254-$260/mt for June-July loading.

A broker in Turkey said the “biggest news” was that sellers lowered CIF Marmara levels without seeing bids.

“Another buying spree will come,” the broker said.

Importers in Turkey are anticipating a further drop in offers, especially for June loading.

In Ukraine, according to a lineup shared by a trader, a total of 2.17 million mt of corn was loaded from Ukrainian ports during May. Turkey was the main destination during the month, with around 811,183 mt shipped to Turkey from May 1-19.

The Netherlands, Spain, Israel, and Italy were the other main destinations for Ukrainian corn. About 292,620 mt was shipped to the Netherlands. Algeria also emerged as a notable buyer of Ukrainian corn in the month.

One cargo of the August shipment was heard traded at around 205 cents/bu over July (N) CBOT, basis CFR China.

Premium basis for Brazilian old crop strengthened amid lower CBOT futures, party driven by the collapse in the soybean futures spread, which lent support to nearby shipment basis levels, according to an Asian soybean trader.

CBOT July (N) futures extend losses for the day, dropping 10.75 cents day over day to 1,169 cents/bu at the 0830 GMT Asian close June 2.

The same trader added that this has redirected buying interests towards Brazilian new-crop shipments.

While Brazilian farmers selling have been quite active last week, purchasing activity in China has been relatively slow this period, with trades focused mainly on old crops, said another Chinese soybean trader.

“However, when old crop prices moved higher yesterday, it likely created some pressure on exporters,” the trader added.

Platts Brazil Soybean Daily Commentary

- Santos soybean price falls to $450.50/mt
- Mato Grosso soybean area growth slows to 0.25%
- Brazilian FOB premiums rise 14-16 cents/bu

Platts, part of S&P Global Energy, assessed the SOYBEX FOB Santos soybean contract for July loading at $450.50/metric ton on June 3, $1.93/mt lower than the previous assessment.

CBOT soybean futures fell to a multi-week low, analysts said, reflecting a stronger dollar, favorable weather in the US Midwest, and high crop ratings, which eased previous drought fears and accelerated planting.

The upcoming 2026-27 soybean crop in the Brazilian state of Mato Grosso may be entering a new phase. After years of rapid expansion, the country's leading producing state is showing signs that growth in planted area is nearing its limit, making productivity and on-farm efficiency more important for sustaining output.

This assessment is based on the first projection released by Imea, the Mato Grosso Institute of Agricultural Economics. The figures indicate that Mato Grosso is expected to plant 13.05 million hectares of soybeans in the upcoming season, up 0.25% from the previous cycle. Higher fertilizer and crop-protection costs, along with global uncertainty, are limiting expansion.

Alongside slower area growth, yields are also projected to decline. With average productivity at 3.75 mt/ha, output is projected at 48.9 million mt in 2026-27, down from 51.6 million mt in 2025-26, a decline of about 5.2%, largely due to higher climate risks linked to a potential El Niño event, IMEA said.

The FOB Paranaguá paper market was active day over day, with trades heard for July and August contracts at higher levels.

Brazilian FOB premiums have risen sharply this week, with the July and August 2026 contracts up 16 cents/bushel and 14 cents/bu, respectively, since June 1.

The US dollar versus the Brazilian real settled at Real 5.0726/$1 at 4:30 pm Brasilia time. Domestic soybean prices were lower in the main producing regions.

Platts US Soybeans Daily Commentary

- Outright prices fall despite US-China soybean trade updates
- Sources dismiss possibility of China buying US soybeans

The US soybeans market saw outright prices fall on June 3 for third day in a row, despite US officials announcing that China could be buying new crop US soybeans.

Platts, part of S&P Global Energy, assessed SOYBEX FOB New Orleans for July shipment $4.13/metric ton down from June 2 at $460.77/mt. Platts assessed basis for FOB Gulf for July shipment remained steady day over day at 100 cents/bushel over the July (N) soybeans futures contract.

Platts assessed the outright price for CIF New Orleans for June shipment $4.87/mt down from the previous business day at $455.25/mt. Platts assessed basis for CIF NOLA for June shipment fell 2 cents day over day to 85 cents/bu over the July (N) soybeans futures contract.

Outright prices were pressured by a fall in futures, with CBOT July (N) futures falling 11.25 cents to 1154 cents/bu, and August (Q) futures decreasing 10.75 cents to 1158.25 cents/bu.

Statements from the US Deputy Agriculture Secretary Stephen Vaden were published on June 2 by the Wall Street Journal, suggesting that China had started placing orders for soybeans that are being planted in the US right now.

However, sources dismissed his claims by saying that no orders of US soybeans by China have been heard placed so far.

"I see no indication of Vaden's comments being real," a trader in the export market said.

"I haven't heard anything about China buying anything yet," a trader in the CIF NOLA market said.

Soybean oil led the complex on June 3, being the only soybean commodity whose futures increased on the CBOT on the day.

"Soybean meal is actually really good right now too," the trader in the CIF NOLA market said. "But because oil is going nuts, people are selling the meal even though cash meal is very strong, and beans aren't keeping up with oil very well now."

Platts Latin America Soybean Meal Daily Commentary

- FOB prices decrease amid lower CBOT
- Cash basis levels hold virtually steady

South American soybean meal FOB prices fell on June 3, tracking lower Chicago Board of Trade futures as the July (N) contract settled at $320.80/short ton, down $5.40/st.

Brazil's FOB Paranaguá recorded a calmer session, with no trades reported and prompt port differentials virtually unchanged. Local markets will be closed on June 4 for a national holiday.

Argentina's FOB Up River was also quiet, although a late June 2 trade had been reported day over day at an $8/st discount to the CBOT benchmarks. In addition to reports of slow export demand, participants remained attentive to the local pace of farmer sales.

According to the Ministry of Economy, Argentine farmers sold 981,000 metric tons of soybeans for the 2025-26 marketing year (April-March) in the week ended May 27, down from 1.08 million mt in the previous week. The volume includes sales for export and crushing.

According to official data, cumulative sales for the season reached 17.18 million mt, compared with 17.88 million mt at this time last year for MY 2024-25.

Platts European Animal Feed Daily Commentary

- Quiet Dutch feed market
- No demand in Spanish feed market: sources

Northern Europe

The Dutch feed market was quiet with prices remaining stable throughout the day.

"Demand is stable with limited market activity," said a Dutch trader.

Offers for locally crushed soybean meal for both August and September periods were seen around Eur353/metric ton and 345/mt, respectively.

Meanwhile, a June 3 shipment list seen by Platts shows seven vessels scheduled to carry soybean cargoes from Brazil and Argentina with deliveries mainly heading to Amsterdam and Rotterdam through June. The cargoes include Brazilian pellets, Brazilian high-protein soymeal (HP), and Argentine Hipro, with the largest volumes at 30,000 mt.

Southern Europe

The Spanish corn market was quiet, with lower offers and no active buying interest, according to market participants.

"Buyers waiting for the price to go back to the previous levels at Eur214/mt, no demand now," a Spanish trader said.

Corn offers for June and July were seen at around Eur226-225/mt on the day.

The Chicago DDGS truck market for the same delivery period was assessed at $196/st, unchanged from the previous business day, and the South California rail market for the June delivery period was assessed at $237/st, steady from June 2.

"Seems like things are inching lower each day," a trader said. "The CBOT weakness in soybean meal today is probably contributing."

Other sources said export demand remains slow.

"The market seems to have very little demand right now on exports," another trader said.

"Demand in the export market is weak right now," a third trader said. "Price levels should lower more before demand returns. The CIF market also felt weak yesterday."

According to the US Energy Information Administration, about 1.108 million barrels or 46.53 million gallons of ethanol were produced daily during the week that ended May 29.

This is 19,000 barrels/day more than the previous week but 3,000 b/d less than the week that ended on May 15.

Ethanol stocks were estimated by the EIA at 1.033 billion gallons in the week that ended on May 22.

Platts Asia Palm Oil Daily Commentary

- Malaysian palm futures rise on supply concerns
- India shows sluggish demand amid high prices
- War-driven surge keeps spot buyers cautious

The Asian palm oil market was mixed June 3, with palm oil futures on the Bursa Malaysia Derivatives rising due to supply concerns following Malaysia's and Indonesia's increased biodiesel mandates, gains in the energy market and declining production in May.

Malaysia's Southern Peninsular Palm Oil Millers Association mentioned a decline in palm oil production for May compared with April. Yield dropped 7.07%, oil extraction decreased 0.57%, and overall production declined 10.07%.

The benchmark palm oil contract for August delivery on the Bursa Malaysia commodity exchange rose MR140/metric ton to MR4,675/mt June 3.

The Indian market continued to show sluggish demand, as current prices were too high compared with soybean oil, while India had sufficient supply and was not eager to restock, an India-based importer said.

Platts assessed the CPO CFR WC India price at $1,255/mt June 3 for June loading, unchanged day over day, while the July shipment was $10/mt higher than June.

Two Asia-based sources said the surge in palm futures is mainly war-driven, prompting spot market buyers to refrain from chasing prices.

Platts Latin America Soybean Oil Daily Commentary

- CBOT July soybean oil futures rise 0.38% on day
- Argentina FOB prices drop amid supply glut
- Brazil basis recovers from record discounts

Brazilian and Argentine soybean oil FOB markets were mixed June 3, as Chicago Board of Trade soybean oil futures extended recent gains, while physical export markets in South America continued reflecting abundant regional supply availability and aggressive exporter competition.

CBOT July soybean oil futures rose 0.38% day over day to settle at 78.71 cents/lb, remaining near the highest levels since 2022. Market participants said soybean oil futures continued receiving support from elevated renewable diesel demand expectations, firm crude oil prices and expectations for tightening US soybean oil balances linked to expanding domestic biofuel consumption.

Participants said the market remained focused on the growing divergence between policy-supported US soybean oil futures and structurally well-supplied physical export markets in South America.

Trading activity in Brazil soybean oil markets remained relatively subdued ahead of the June 4 Corpus Christi Day holiday in Brazil, when Platts, part of S&P Global Energy, will not publish Latin American soybean oil assessments.

In Argentina, Platts assessed the soybean oil FOB Up River price for July loading at $1,177.49/mt June 3, down $6.61/mt from June 2. The basis for July loading in the Up River paper market was assessed 60 points lower at minus 2,530 points to July (N) CBOT futures.

In Brazil, Platts assessed the soybean oil FOB Paranaguá price for July loading at $1,195.13/mt June 3, up $11.03/mt from June 2. The basis for July loading in the Paranaguá paper market was assessed 20 points higher at minus 2,450 points to July (N) CBOT futures.

Platts also assessed the soybean oil FOB Paranaguá price for August loading at $1,197.77/mt June 3, up $15.43/mt from June 2. The basis for August loading in the Paranaguá paper market was assessed 20 points higher at minus 2,300 points to August (Q) CBOT futures.

Market participants said the continued weakness in Argentina basis levels reflected ongoing pressure from elevated export availability and aggressive competition among exporters despite historically elevated CBOT soybean oil futures.

Participants noted that Brazil FOB values strengthened more sharply than Argentina during the session, helping Brazilian basis levels recover modestly from recent record discounts.

Participants continued monitoring record soybean production and crush projections in Brazil after Brazil's National Supply Company, or Conab, maintained its 2025-26 soybean crop estimate at 180.13 million mt, and the Brazilian Association of Vegetable Oil Industries, or ABIOVE, projected Brazilian soybean processing at a record 62.5 million mt in 2026.

At the same time, market participants said Brazil's B15 biodiesel mandate continued supporting domestic soybean oil demand, partially absorbing expanding regional soybean oil supplies despite continued pressure on export premiums.

Demand into Asia remained broadly steady but continued lagging the pace of South American supply growth. Participants said elevated freight costs and competitively priced palm oil continued constraining delivered arbitrage opportunities for soybean oil exports into Asian destinations.

Platts Europe Vegetable Oil Daily Commentary

- Market stagnated amid low supply, demand
- Russian competition limits Ukrainian export opportunities
- EU coverage reduces urgency for additional buying

European vegetable oil markets remained largely unchanged June 3, reflecting what a source based in Ukraine described as a "low-supply and low-demand" environment.

Platts assessed FOB Black Sea sunflower oil unchanged at $1,379/metric ton, while RSO FOB Dutch Mills front-month and second-month positions remained at Eur 1,149/mt and Eur 1,150/mt, respectively.

Deferred rapeseed oil positions were also broadly stable, with only the fourth position rising Eur 5 to Eur 1,131/mt.

The lack of significant price movement reflects a market characterized by limited trading activity and balanced fundamentals.

Demand prospects remain mixed across key export destinations. According to the source based in Ukraine, Turkish demand could improve as buyers return from holidays, but there's little hope for exports to Turkey "because Russian oil is cheaper and the Russians are more aggressive."

The source added that Russia continues to hold substantial remaining seed inventories, estimating that at least 3 million mt still are uncrushed. This suggests that significant volumes of Russian sunflower oil could continue to enter global markets throughout the remainder of the season, increasing competition in markets outside the EU.

On the supply side, Ukrainian export availability is becoming increasingly constrained. The source noted that crushers are stopping for annual maintenance and preparing for the upcoming rapeseed crush, as crush margins on sun seeds are "extremely low." As a result, fewer sunflower oil offers are emerging from Ukrainian ports.

While reduced crushing activity is limiting nearby supply, the impact on prices has been muted because demand conditions remain equally subdued. This is contributing to the stagnant market structure currently observed across the sunflower oil complex.

Europe remains the primary outlet for Ukrainian sunflower oil, although buying interest has moderated.

Europe is not an active buyer at the moment because "the EU is getting what they need," according to the source based in Ukraine, with imports estimated at about 200,000 mt per month, compared with around 220,000 mt two months earlier.

This suggests that European buyers remain adequately covered, reducing the urgency to secure additional volumes despite tightening Ukrainian production. The resulting market dynamic is one of equilibrium, where constrained supply is largely offset by strong demand, keeping prices stable despite limited supply.

Argentine soybean meal FOB falls below Brazil on weak demand

- FOB Up River basis drops to $9/st discount ot CBOT
- Argentine April meal exports fall below expectations

Export prices for Argentine soybean meal June 2 fell below Brazilian levels for the first time in three weeks, as weaker external demand is pressuring the country's port differentials, the world's largest exporter of the commodity.

Platts assessed the FOB Up River soybean meal price for July shipment June 2 at $349.65/metric ton, compared with $350.20/mt for FOB Paranaguá cargoes loading in the same month. This was the first time the Argentine value was below the Brazilian since May 12.

Platts South American soybean meal FOB prices

"Demand is still lacking," said an Argentine market source.

Another source said, "Nobody wants to buy on the dip."

Indeed, weakened demand has weighed on FOB Up River export premiums, with Platts assessing the spot basis at a $9/short ton discount to Chicago Board of Trade futures on June 2. In mid-April, when the Argentine soybean harvest faced delays and farmer selling was slower, the differential reached an $8/st premium to CBOT.

S&P Global Energy CERA estimates that Argentina will export 29.50 million mt of soybean meal in the current 2025-26 season, starting in April, up from 28.72 million mt in 2024-25.

In April, Argentine soybean meal exports totaled 2.50 million mt, according to the Ministry of Economy, short of CERA's forecast of 2.80 million mt.

"Delayed harvests limited soybean supplies, while strong corn export demand may have constrained soybean product exports," CERA analysts said in the Global Soybean Complex Short-Term Outlook report released May 29.

EGYPT DATA: May wheat, corn imports fall by half on month

- Egypt narrows wheat sources to Russia, Ukraine in May
- Argentine corn was the sole origin for corn imports

Egypt imported 910,000 metric tons of wheat in May, down 53% month over month but up 81% year over year, according to local shipping data from LATT Trading & Shipping, released June 2.

Egypt's wheat imports saw a notable shift in May, with shipments limited to just Russia and Ukraine. Russia remained the dominant supplier in May, providing 563,440 mt, while Ukraine contributed 346,476 mt. In contrast, in May 2025, imports were diversified from four countries. The state bought wheat mainly from Ukraine (340,500 mt) and just one 62,000-mt cargo from Russia, while private companies supplied the rest.

The Milling Wheat Marker benchmark was $3.47/mt higher month over month, with May's average at $242.08/mt, compared with April's $238.61/mt, data from Platts, part of S&P Global Energy, showed.

On June 2, Platts assessed the MWM at $242.25/mt, closely tracking Ukrainian prices. It also assessed the CIF East Med basis Egypt 12.5% price at $262/mt on June 2.

Many buyers in Egypt are just returning from the Eid holiday season this week. Demand remains subdued amid a low import forecast and better local production.

Weak import demand

Egypt imported around 658,150 mt of corn in May, down 56% month over month but up 20% year over year, according to the local shipping data from LATT Trading & Shipping.

The demand for imported corn remained weak during the month, as warehouses were full, leading to oversupply in the market. Currency fluctuations and low margins in the internal market have also slowed imports this month.

Argentine corn was the only origin imported during the month, even as imports were down 2% month over month but up 85% year over year.

Exports from all other origins dropped significantly year over year and month over month. The higher quality of South American corn relative to Ukrainian corn, and the rise in Ukrainian corn prices due to demand from Turkey, led to slower Ukrainian corn imports during the month.

Platts assessed the Ukrainian corn market at an average of $239.05/mt in May, up $9.30/mt from $229.75/mt in April. Platts assessed FOB POC at $238.50/mt June 2.

Ukrainian corn exports hit 2.17 million mt in May on diverse demand

- Turkey captures 37% of total shipments following April quota
- European buyers take 40% of corn flows
- Argentine corn challenges POC competitiveness in Asia

Ukrainian corn exports reached 2.17 million mt in May, according to a shipping lineup shared by a source at the Ukrainian Supply Chain and Services Group.

Turkey purchased 811,183 mt, capturing over 37% of total volumes, while the Netherlands and Spain secured about 20.79% as Ukrainian corn regained competitiveness against US origins.

Exports took place even as Ukrainian farmers continued withholding sales throughout May, anticipating price gains after FOB Black Sea corn prices climbed from $236/mt at the start of the month to peak at $240/mt by mid-May, according to Platts assessments. The supply tightness was compounded by logistical constraints as wheat shipments competed for the same export infrastructure, further limiting corn movement capacity.

Turkey's position as the leading destination reflected sustained import demand following the country's April quota announcement, though buying interest weakened toward the month-end as significant holidays took place in the country

The export volumes represent ships that sailed from Ukrainian ports, including Odessa, Pivdennyi and Chornomorsk, ships that were loading, and cargoes nominated at port facilities.

European destinations collectively absorbed 862,599 mt or nearly 40% of total Ukrainian corn flows, demonstrating the region's continued importance despite initial concerns about US competition. Asian markets, led by South Korea with 104,300 mt, accounted for 263,000 mt, though this segment faced increasing pressure from Argentine supplies.

Market dynamics

The Ukrainian corn market faced supply pressure throughout May as Ukrainian farmers continued withholding sales despite rising prices, creating logistical bottlenecks as wheat shipments competed for the same export infrastructure. In Romania, the CVB market faced particularly acute tightness, with suppliers having no old-crop corn stocks and new-crop priced at a premium to the Chicago Board of Trade basis.

"Usually when farmers see higher prices, they just wait for it to go even higher ... Until it breaks, then they sell," a Ukrainian trader told Platts in mid-May, explaining the persistent supply squeeze that supported price gains throughout the month.

Argentine corn emerged as Ukraine's primary competitive threat by late May, becoming the most competitive origin to Northeast and Southeast Asian markets following projections for a record 64 million mt harvest. This competitive pressure limited Ukrainian corn's appeal in traditional Asian destinations, with South Korea representing the only significant Asian buyer at 104,300 mt.

Ukrainian corn exports reached 16.3 million mt by May 11, maintaining pace with the previous year despite ongoing supply constraints and increased global competition, according to industry data.

Platts, part of S&P Global Energy, assessed Ukrainian corn unchanged at $238.50/mt FOB POC, and CVB corn unchanged at $243/mt FOB CVB June 2.

Palm oil futures near 2-month high on expectations of lower supply, firmer crude

- Malaysia production seen down 10% in May
- Middle East tensions boost crude oil prices

Crude palm oil prices rose to near two-month highs on June 3 after a key industry group in Malaysia cut production estimate for May, coupled with higher oil prices amid the Middle East conflict, traders and analysts told Platts, part of S&P Global Energy.

The benchmark crude palm oil contract for August delivery on the Bursa Malaysia Derivatives Exchange rose nearly 2.9% to MR 4,670 ($1,169.08)/metric ton on June 3, the highest level since April 9.

The exchange was closed on June 1 and 2 due to public holidays.

Malaysia is the world's second-largest producer and exporter of palm oil after Indonesia. The two countries account for about 85% of the world's palm oil supply.

The Southern Peninsula Palm Oil Pressers Association reduced Malaysia's palm oil production estimate for May by 10.1% from a month ago, it said in a statement on June 3.

"There was a lot of funds buying today after the Southern Peninsula Palm Oil Pressers Association said production in May is expected to be down 10.1% from the month before," said Paramalingam Supramaniam, director at Pelindung Bestari, a Malaysia-based brokerage firm. He added that the further escalation of tensions in the Middle East also pushed prices higher.

Crude oil and palm oil prices usually move in tandem because palm oil is a primary feedstock for biodiesel. Higher crude oil values typically boost palm oil demand and prices.

“Rising crude oil contributed to palm oil’s rally today,” a vegetable oil trader based in India said.

At 1005 GMT, the front-month August ICE Brent futures contract was up $2.31/b from the previous close at $98.31/b, while the NYMEX July light sweet crude contract was $2.65/b higher at $96.39/b.

Meanwhile, in Indonesia, domestic palm oil prices rebounded on June 3.

Prices of domestic palm oil tenders by Indonesia’s state-owned plantation company PTPN, or Perkebunan Nusantara, have fallen in May after Jakarta announced a plan to set up a government body to manage natural resource exports, including palm oil, coal and ferroalloys, on May 20.

The market may be reassessing the impact of Indonesia’s increased biodiesel blending mandate, now only weeks away, said Lim Kausar, an Indonesia-based palm oil analyst.

Indonesia will officially implement its mandatory B50 biodiesel program on July 1. The policy requires a fuel blend composed of 50% crude palm oil (CPO) and 50% fossil diesel, replacing the current B40 mandate.

Platts assessed the price of crude palm oil FOB Indonesia for June-loading CPO FOB Indonesia at $1,220/mt on June 2, up 1.2% from the day before.
