Commentary and Analysis

Wheat

Platts European Wheat Daily Commentary

- Black Sea sellers lower offers amid attacks
- Jordan buys wheat at $318.95/mt in tender

The Black Sea wheat market weakened on Aug. 18 on an FOB basis as sellers lowered their offers amid poor demand.

Russian sellers offered at $217/metric ton from deep-sea ports, but buyers were absent from the market amid execution risk. Market participants said there were more attacks on ships in Tuapse and Novorossiysk.

"I don't see the Novorossiysk market; nothing is happening there," a Russia-based seller said. Elsewhere, there were buyers for Baltics at FOB buyers at $250/mt for the same loading window. The ruble weakened to its lowest level since March this year at 86 rubles/$1, adding to the sentiment of weaker export levels and higher export taxes.

On demand, Jordan bought for the first time since June in a tender on Aug. 18 at $318.95/mt for 60,000 mt of wheat from trading company CHS Inc. for an Oct. 1-15 shipment C&F, a source close to the tender process said. The last time Jordan bought in June was for a shipment at $275.20/mt in the second half of August.

Traders saw more firm offers from the Ukrainian coaster market to Turkey, with 12.5% offered at $260/mt, and bids to Egypt at $268/mt.

In the EU, the CVB market rose amid some demand at $261/mt for the 11.5% specifications. In France, FOB wheat prices FOB increased by €3/mt, while CPT was down by €1.50/mt. Buyers monitored the harvest pressure, which typically weighs on prices at this point in the season.

Platts Asia Wheat Daily Commentary

- APW milling wheat offers rise to $300/mt
- Vietnamese millers shift from wheat to corn
- Black Sea war disrupts Asian supply chains

Australian Premium White and Australian Standard White wheat with no protein guarantee rose day over day Aug. 18, as increasing FOB demand as traders sought to execute destination contracts amid Black Sea logistics disruptions.

Liquidity in the Australian wheat market rose amid rising FOB interest, with sources noting that offer levels were raised to $300/mt FOB WA for APW and $293/mt FOB WA for ASW1 October/November shipments.

However, spot destination demand was quiet on Aug. 18, as Vietnamese and Philippine buyers were on the sidelines, awaiting further price changes.

Vietnamese feed millers were said to be lowering feed wheat inclusions and increasing the ratio of corn in their animal feed formulas, although "their formula always requires some minimum amount of wheat," according to a Vietnamese importer source.

"For the August-September period, the main supply for the Vietnam market is Black Sea, so many contracts cannot be executed with the current war conditions. Baltic wheat might be an option, but the transit time to Vietnam will be much longer," the importer source further explained.

Argentine-origin wheat was seen as another alternative to Black Sea-origin wheat and as a competitor to Australian wheat, although a Singapore-based wheat trader noted that it was difficult to secure a full bulk carrier of 11% protein Argentine wheat, while most available cargoes were 10.5%.

"The millers can blend for now and make do with what they have," the Singapore trader said.

"Argentina and Australian [wheat] are still there, but markets are stronger. The switch [from Black sea] is slow transactionally, most buyers are waiting," said an Australian broker source.

Platts Canada Wheat Daily Commentary

- Nearby export capacity tightens
- Japan MAFF tender expected to influence prices

Platts assessed Canada Western Red Spring Wheat 13.5% FOB Vancouver 30-45 days forward at $304.52/metric ton Aug. 18, up 28 cents from the last session, with September capacity fully booked and October availability tightening as participants looked to the latest Japanese MAFF tender for additional price direction.

The December Minneapolis Hard Red Spring wheat futures contract rose 0.75 cent/bu to settle at 703.75 cents/bu, remaining relatively steady following recent volatility in the wheat market.

One trader said “Sep capacity is done,” while indicating an October bid-offer range of 110-125 cents/bu over the December Minneapolis wheat futures contract and November bid-offer 105-120 over the December Minneapolis wheat futures contract.

Similar logistical tightness was reported in the US Pacific Northwest.

“Similar situation here off the PNW, where elevations are filling up for October,” another trader said, adding that Japan was expected in the market this week for October shipment.

“They are typically the last to buy,” the trader said.

Attention was also turning to Japan’s Ministry of Agriculture, Forestry and Fisheries tender, expected overnight. One trader said current CWRS indications appeared fair and expected the tender to provide another reference for the market.

In South Korea, market activity remained subdued as buyers shifted focus to December arrivals, according to a local trade agent.

“The buying idea is still low,” the agent said.

Meanwhile, corn prices have recently faced upward pressure amid market talk of US corn replacing Black Sea supply, which continues to face export difficulties, a Singapore-based trader said, adding that lower US corn yields, as reported by the USDA, have further supported sentiment.

US Pacific Northwest availability remains limited for October, with most capacity now allocated to November shipments, the trader said.

US PNW corn basis offers for November shipment were unchanged at 150 cents/bushel over the December CBOT contract.

"November offers are not easy to check since most FOB sellers are prioritizing soybeans," a second Singapore-based trader said.

Platts Latin America Corn Daily Commentary

- Lower premium in Argentina
- Corn harvest reaches 84.7% in Brasil

Platts assessed Latin America FOB corn prices down Aug. 18 amid declines in Chicago Board of Trade futures.

The FOB Up River premiums for October loading dropped amid no buyer interest during the day.

Demand in Argentina is slow, brokers said.

The Brazilian FOB Santos premiums for October loading were unchanged.

Brazilian grain exporters' association ANEC estimated Brazil's August corn shipments at 5.63 million mt, higher than last week's estimate of 5.17 million mt but lower than 7.33 million mt a year earlier.

ANEC also expects 1.45 million mt of corn to be shipped from the port of Santos, São Francisco do Sul, Itacoatiara, Santarém, Barcarena and Santana in the week ending Aug. 22.

The US dollar/Brazilian real exchange rate stood at 5.2203 reais/$1 as of 5:30 pm Brasilia time, up 0.35% day over day.

In Brazil's domestic market, prices were steady in the Sorriso, Rio Verde and Maringá regions.

The winter corn harvest reached 84.7% of the nationwide area as of Aug. 14, lower than 89.3% in 2024-25 at the same time, according to data published by the Brazilian agricultural agency Conab on Aug. 17.

Conab reported that in Mato Grosso state, almost the entire harvest is complete, and yields have already surpassed initial estimates. In Paraná, high soil and grain moisture are limiting harvest progress. In Goiás, the harvest is advancing in the North and East regions and is approaching completion in the Southwest. Yields achieved so far are uneven, and grain quality has also been heterogeneous, with wide variation in grain weight.

Platts US Corn Daily Commentary

- Crop tour reveals storm damage, immaturity
- USDA rates 60% of corn good to excellent, down 1% on week

The US corn market experienced a weak day in trading on Aug. 18, while the Pro Farmer Crop Tour reported immature crops in Nebraska and Indiana.

"Mixed market action with slightly weaker spread trade so far," a broker said, adding that the market showed lower volume and mostly conviction-less action.

The Chicago Board of Trade September (U) future contracts settled at $4.6325/bushel on Aug. 18, down 1.75 cents during the session. December (Z) decreased 1.50 cents in the same period, to $4.8800/bu.

The Pro Farmer Crop Tour, organized by Farm Journal, covers nearly 70% of the US corn and soybean acres and is being held from Aug. 17-20. On its second day, Nebraska field reports indicated storm-related damage caused by moisture, rainfall and strong winds. While several irrigated areas look strong on the surface, pollination is still showing stress, as heat and dryness create problems even in Eastern Nebraska despite irrigation.

Meanwhile, Indiana crops showed immaturity due to heat and pollination issues, followed by rain. Improving the crop will require continued heat, but the main risk is an early freeze before harvest, raising concern in the context of potential El Niño patterns, the Farm Journal said in its live transmission.

Early corn yield estimates are starting to come in below last year, down 14.41% in South Dakota and 3% in Ohio.

Market sources said it is important to continue closely monitoring rainfall and moisture, and that the Southeast is expected to maintain better crop conditions and quality.

Another broker source said that farmers were trying to embrace a bullish market.

The weekly Crop Progress report released by the US Department of Agriculture on Aug. 17 showed 76% of the US corn crop in the dough stage by Aug. 16. Condition ratings were down one percentage point from the prior week at 60% in good to excellent condition.

Platts assessed August CIF New Orleans corn at $220.20/metric ton and September at $224.90/mt, while October FOB Gulf was assessed at $234.65/mt, on Aug. 18.

- Ukraine farmers delay harvest amid export woes
- Danube water levels disrupt shipping routes

The Black Sea corn market moved sideways on Aug. 18. Price indications across the market remained stable day over day, with a spread of around $8/metric ton between offers for the current crop and those for the new crop. However, demand for both current-crop and new-crop corn on an FOB basis remained subdued.

"If a ceasefire at sea isn't agreed upon, it will be a very difficult year for exports and logistics through the Black Sea," said a trader from Ukraine. "There is demand, but there is no capacity to ship," the trader added.

Amid the ongoing logistical constraints, traders anticipate that farmers will harvest corn later and leave it in the fields for longer to manage their available storage capacity.

"Farmers in Ukraine can harvest corn in the winter—it doesn't have to be harvested in the fall; it can remain in the fields until spring," a market participant from Ukraine said. "Thanks to this, many farms will be able to preserve their storage capacity for other crops."

Furthermore, traders anticipate that the new crop will be traded mostly through coaster vessels and overland routes. The

- Nearby shipment traded
- Thin Chinese demand on higher CBOT futures

CFR China soybean month-one October shipment was up $11.12/metric ton day over day at $555.66/mt Aug. 18, while the basis was up 3 cents/bushel at 288 cents/bu over November (X) Chicago Board of Trade (CBOT) futures.

Overnight, trading liquidity for Brazilian soybeans basis CFR China was largely quiet, as a sharp rally in CBOT soybean futures dampened Chinese buying interest.

Some trades were concluded for October shipment at about 285-290 cents/bu over November (X) CBOT, basis CFR China, according to Chinese soybean traders, with one adding that Chinese demand has thinned out after the CBOT strengthened.

The bid-offer spread for October shipment stands at 10 cents/bu, with the lowest indicative offer heard at 295 cents/bu over November (X) CBOT, according to a Chinese soybean trader.

The futures strength was partly driven by the latest Pro Farmer crop tour results, which raised concerns about US crop prospects, the trader added.

Demand for Brazilian new crop and US soybeans remained subdued, another Chinese soybean trader said.

Platts Brazil Soybean Daily Commentary

- New crop shipments traded in Paranaguá
- CBOT futures rise on US crop worries, China demand

Platts assessed the SOYBEX FOB Santos soybean contract for October loading at $502.59/metric ton on Aug. 18, down $1.19/mt from the previous assessment.

CBOT soybean futures were steady to marginally higher, building on recent gains as early findings from the Pro Farmer crop tour fueled concerns over US yield potential. Continued export demand, including recent purchases by China, also provided support to the market, analysts said.

The Brazilian grain exporters' association, ANEC, reduced its estimate of soybean exports in August to 10.56 million metric tons, still the highest monthly volume on record.

The current estimate represents a 30.3% increase compared with ANEC's August 2025 data, the association said Aug. 18.

Brazil's soybean exports through the first eight months of 2026 are projected at 95.19 million mt, up 8.0% over the same period in 2025, according to ANEC.

There was strong trading activity in the Paranaguá FOB paper market, heavily concentrated on new crop 2027 shipments, with several trades heard for March and April parcels on the day.

Chinese soybean arrivals are expected to decrease over the next two to three months, according to market sources, as lower Argentine export volumes and weaker domestic crush margins have reduced demand for Brazilian soybeans, increasing the need for imports from the US.

The US dollar versus the Brazilian real settled at Real 5.2182/$1 at 4:30 pm Brasilia time. Domestic soybean prices were higher in the main producing regions.

Platts, part of S&P Global Energy, assessed SOYBEX FOB New Orleans for October shipment at $2.11/metric ton, up from Aug. 17 at $493.01/mt. The Platts-assessed basis for FOB Gulf for October shipment climbed 5 cents day over day to 125 cents/bushel over the November (X) soybeans futures contract.

at $486.03/mt. The Platts-assessed basis for CIF NOLA for August shipment remained unchanged day over day at 106 cents/bu over the November (X) soybeans futures contract.

In the morning of Aug. 18, the USDA confirmed the sale of 136,000 mt of soybeans for delivery to China during the 2026-27 marketing year.

Sources in the export market said that sales to China and reports of worsening soybean crop conditions across the US corn belt are bullish for the FOB Gulf basis, a day after a rally in the futures market that boosted outright prices.

"It's a continuation from yesterday," a trader in the FOB Gulf market said. "China, crop conditions, etc."

While some sources reported some damage to the soybean crop due to flooding, others disregarded the information.

"I believe that the crops are worse than we think they are overall," the trader in the FOB Gulf market said. "That said, the sample size is currently too small to come to a reasonable conclusion."

"I have seen about 20 loads from the South with no hint of damage," a trader in the CIF NOLA market said. "Clean load after clean load."

The USDA published its Crop Progress report on Aug. 17, showing that the percentage of soybeans reported in excellent condition during the week that ended on Aug. 16 increased 1% week over week to 12%.

However, soybeans in good condition fell by 2 percentage points to 49%. Soybeans in fair condition increased from 28% to 29% week over week. The percentages of those in poor and very poor conditions remained steady week over week at 8% and 2%, respectively.

- Soybean meal FOB prices post mixed movements
- October basis down in Argentina, up in Brazil

Soybean meal FOB prices rose in Brazil and fell in Argentina on Aug. 18, mirroring uneven trends in nearby port differentials.

FOB Paranaguá premiums strengthened amid reports of compressing crush margins and slow farmer sales, sources said. Parcels were negotiated for loading from October to December.

In the FOB Up River cargo market, a slightly weaker tone was considered for prompt shipments, although subdued market activity has been reported following a national holiday on Aug. 17. Basis discussions for October dates were last seen at $9-$13/short ton over the Chicago Board of Trade futures.

The CBOT September (U) contract settled at $314.60/st on Aug. 18, up 60 cents/st.

As for fundamentals, the Argentine oilseed crush capacity is running at 84%, according to the Argentine Chamber of the Oil Industry, surpassing last year's 83% and well above the average of 65% for the period.

- Dutch soybean meal offers climb to €370/mt
- Spanish corn prices rise on higher CBOT futures
- Southern Europe sees zero demand for soybean meal, corn

Northern Europe

The Dutch soybean meal price remained unchanged on Aug. 18 due to lower demand.

"The soybean meal offers have gone up from €366/mt to €370/mt over the past five days," a Netherlands-based broker said, adding that higher futures and rising premiums were the primary reasons.

A Netherlands-based trader said lower crush margins in Brazil has raised premiums, noting concerns over its impact on near-term supply.

Southern Europe

Spanish corn prices were bullish on Aug. 18 amid higher bids and offers, with futures higher.

"As the CBOT rose, which pushed the price higher, with higher bids," a second broker based in Spain said.

The soybean meal market remained unchanged amid lower demand in the market.

Demand in the market was “zero,” but even with higher offers, bids and tradable values continued to rise, the second trader said.

Platts US Distiller Grains DDGS Daily Commentary

- Buyers await price correction
- Mediterranean demand strengthens

The US dried distillers grains with solubles market remained relatively quiet Aug. 18, with wide bid-offer spreads limiting trade as buyers resisted higher values following the recent rally in corn futures, while international demand showed signs of strengthening.

Platts assessed CIF New Orleans dried distillers grains with solubles barges for the August shipment period at $204/short ton Aug. 18, the Chicago DDGS truck market for the August delivery period was assessed at $188/st, and the South California rail market for the August delivery period was assessed at $231/st.

One trader described a quiet start to the week internationally, with no new customer orders and only requests for updated pricing.

“Offers moved higher yesterday because of CBOT,” the trader said, adding that CIF NOLA activity remained limited.

The source indicated August around $204/st as a potentially tradable level, although no transaction was heard.

A broker described the market as subdued, with buyers and sellers waiting amid wide spreads.

“Corn up,” the broker said. “I think many will want to buy on breaks, just not up here.”

The source added that CIF currently offered better relative value than rail and Chicago trucks, despite elevated barge freight rates.

The broker said considerable demand has yet to enter the market as end-users wait for a correction.

“All are reluctant to bring bids up,” the source said, while sellers appeared comfortable waiting.

However, the source said some buyers will soon need to secure coverage, potentially forcing bids and offers closer together.

Internationally, a Latin American broker reported increased activity from Turkey and Spain, while Colombia had reportedly secured November business.

“Demand in the Mediterranean is increasing because of the problems in the Black Sea,” the broker said, adding that inquiries had already emerged for November and December.

Platts Latin America Soybean Oil Daily Commentary

- South American soy oil prices fall Aug. 18
- CBOT Sept. futures drop 1.75 cents per pound
- Brazilian basis gains limit price declines

South American soybean oil FOB prices declined Aug. 18 as Chicago Board of Trade soybean oil futures retreated sharply from the previous session's rally, although stronger Brazilian export basis values cushioned the decline in the underlying market.

CBOT September soybean oil futures settled at 69.69 cents/lb, down 1.75 cents/lb, or 2.45%, from Aug. 17. The decline reversed much of the previous session's 2.88% increase and returned the contract below 70 cents/lb.

US crop development remained ahead of its normal pace. Weekly Crop Progress data from the US Department of Agriculture's National Agricultural Statistics Service showed 96% of the soybean crop blooming as of Aug. 16, while 85% was setting pods, five percentage points ahead of the five-year average.

The advanced development continued to provide a comfortable backdrop for US soybean production as the crop moved through key reproductive stages, keeping attention focused on late-season weather and yield prospects.

Regional activity also returned to more normal levels following Argentina's Aug. 17 public holiday, when Platts did not publish Argentine soybean oil assessments and participation from the Argentine market was limited.

In Argentina, Platts, part of S&P Global Energy, assessed soybean oil FOB Up River for September loading at $1,183.66/mt Aug. 18, down $3.31/mt from the previous Argentine assessment on Aug. 14.

The September Up River paper basis was assessed 40 points lower at minus 1,600 points against the CBOT September soybean oil futures contract. The weaker differential added to pressure from the decline in futures, pushing the outright Argentine assessment lower.

In Brazil, Platts assessed soybean oil FOB Paranaguá for September loading at $1,185.87/mt, down $14.33/mt from Aug. 17.

The September Paranaguá basis strengthened 110 points to minus 1,590 points against CBOT September futures.

The substantial basis recovery absorbed more than half of the 175-point futures decline, limiting the fall in the outright Brazilian price.

Brazil's October market followed a similar pattern. Platts assessed soybean oil FOB Paranaguá for October loading at $1,183.66/mt, down $11.47/mt from Aug. 17.

The October Paranaguá paper basis strengthened 100 points to minus 1,600 points against the CBOT October soybean oil futures contract. September maintained a modest $2.21/mt premium to October, while the September basis stood 10 points stronger than the deferred loading period.

Brazilian and Argentine September values were again closely aligned, with Paranaguá assessed just $2.21/mt above Up River and the respective basis levels separated by only 10 points.

Platts Europe Vegetable Oil Daily Commentary

- EU sunflower crop forecast above 9.5 mil mt
- Rapeseed oil extends recent price recovery
- Black Sea logistics support nearby sunflower oil

European vegetable oil markets strengthened further Aug. 18, led by gains across the rapeseed oil forward curve, while Black Sea sunflower oil remained unchanged.

RSO FOB Dutch Mills front month rose €6/metric ton to €1,207/mt, while the second and third positions gained €13/mt and €11/mt, respectively, to €1,190/mt and €1,183/mt. The fourth position increased €3/mt to €1,131/mt.

FOB Black Sea sunflower oil was assessed unchanged at $1,379/mt.

The continued recovery in rapeseed oil contrasts with expectations for ample global rapeseed supply, suggesting that nearby European logistics and physical availability remain important drivers. Restricted Black Sea operations and low European river levels have complicated movements into the EU market, while rapeseed oil values have now recovered substantially from the sharp correction seen at the beginning of August.

Sunflower oil remains supported by restricted availability in the Black Sea, although the longer-term supply outlook is becoming more comfortable. The European Commission expects EU sunflower seed production to reach slightly above 9.5 million mt in 2026, more than 9% higher year over year, the largest crop since 2023. Planted area increased about 5% to 4.9 million hectares, while average yields are forecast at 1.95 mt/ha, up from 1.87 mt/ha in 2025 and 1.74 mt/ha in 2024.

The larger EU crop should increase sunflower seed availability and eventually provide downward pressure on sunflower oil as new-crop supplies enter the market. However, nearby Black Sea fundamentals remain disconnected from the improving production outlook.

Limited Ukrainian and Russian offers, weak regional exports, and continued disruption to port and shipping operations are restricting the immediately available supply. This leaves sunflower oil caught between a bearish new-crop production outlook and a supportive nearby logistics environment.

Brazil rice imports outpace exports despite currency boost

- Milled rice imports climb 43% amid tight supply
- Weaker real boosts Brazilian rice competitiveness
- Corn exports continued lower than previous year

Rice

Brazil's rice trade flows remained mixed in the second week of August, with a sharp surge in paddy exports offset by softer milled rice shipments and continued strength in imports, according to data from foreign trade agency SECEX.

Brazil exported 33,783 metric tons of milled rice during the week, equivalent to 3,378 mt/day, down 19.6% year over year. In contrast, paddy rice exports climbed to 107,641 mt, a 250% increase from the same period in 2025, underscoring strong demand for Brazilian rough rice in export markets.

Despite the recovery in export activity, imports continued to outpace exports across several categories. Milled rice imports rose 43% year over year to 57,824 mt, while paddy arrivals increased 18% to 2,887 mt. The figures highlight Brazil's growing dependence on regional supplies as tight domestic availability and robust demand continue to support elevated rice prices.

Market participants reported an increase in export trading activity following the sharp depreciation of the Brazilian real against the US dollar, which improved the competitiveness of Brazilian rice in international markets. The weaker currency encouraged producers to increase offers for rice delivered to the Rio Grande port, while exporters actively covered vessel commitments through a series of spot purchases.

The real weakened 2.39% over Aug. 10-14, settling at 5.220 reais/$1 on Aug. 14. The US dollar remained firm on Aug. 18, trading at 5.2203 reais/$1 at 5:30 pm Brasilia time.

Reflecting the improved export outlook, Platts assessed Brazilian long-grain white rice, 5% broken, FOB Rio Grande, at $540/mt on Aug. 18, unchanged on the day.

Corn

Brazil exported 2.122 million mt of corn in the two week of August, equivalent to 221,630 mt/day, lower than the 326,127 mt/day recorded in August 2025, according to Brazilian Foreign Trade Secretariat data released on Aug. 17.

Due to the advancement of the winter corn harvest, a large quantity of corn is available in the market. Despite this, the export volume in August remains lower than it was in the same week in the previous year.

Traders became more active and bought a significant amount of corn during the second week of the month, and as a result, exports are expected to intensify in the coming weeks.

Platts assessed FOB Santos corn for October shipment at $231.48/mt Aug. 18, down 59 cents/mt day over day.

China restores eight Ecuadorean shrimp exporters amid record-low prices

- Ecuadorean shrimp hits $3,990/mt record low
- China restores eight suspended exporters
- Oversupply persists despite market access gains

Market sentiment in Ecuador's shrimp sector improved after China's decision to restore export authorizations for eight Ecuadorian establishments, easing concerns that had weighed on prices in recent weeks. The move was confirmed Aug. 17 by Ecuador's National Chamber of Aquaculture (CNA), which said the reinstatements followed months of joint efforts involving affected companies, the industry association and national authorities.

The announcement comes shortly after Ecuador's shrimp prices reached a fresh record low. Platts, part of S&P Global Energy, assessed Ecuadorian head-on, shell-on (HOSO) 30-40 count shrimp at $3,990/metric ton FCA Guayaquil, Ecuador, on Aug. 14, the lowest level since the assessment was launched in September 2024. Market participants, including exporters and producers, said sentiment had already begun improving late the previous week amid rumors that some of the suspended plants could regain access to China.

Those expectations appeared to support market confidence, with Platts assessing HOSO 30-40 count shrimp back at $4,000/mt FCA Guayaquil, Ecuador, on Aug. 17. Market participants noted that 30-40 count shrimp had been one of the sizes most affected by current market weakness due to abundant availability and slow buying interest.

According to the CNA, Chinese authorities notified Ecuador on Aug. 14 of the decision to restore the authorization of eight establishments that had been suspended since October 2025 and, in some cases, January 2026. The association described the development as a significant step toward normalizing access to China, one of Ecuador's most important shrimp export destinations.

Six Ecuadorean establishments remain suspended, however. The CNA said it will continue working alongside government authorities and affected companies to seek the reinstatement of the remaining facilities and the full restoration of market access. The association also expressed hope that discussions during Ecuador's president's current visit to China could help advance the process further.

The latest development removed one of the most important bearish narratives affecting the market since July, when concerns emerged that restrictions on Ecuadorean exporters could disrupt shipments and increase uncertainty across the sector. Earlier this year, market participants feared affected volumes might struggle to reach their traditional destination, potentially adding pressure to a market already marked by record production and weak prices.

Still, while the reinstatements may improve sentiment, many market participants continue to view oversupply as the industry's main challenge. Market sources in recent weeks have consistently described abundant availability of shrimp, particularly HOSO 30-40 count, while buyers in key destinations remain cautious and largely without urgency to replenish inventories.

As a result, the restoration of the eight establishments is widely seen as positive for confidence and market access, but not necessarily as a solution to the broader supply-demand imbalance that continues to weigh on Ecuadorean shrimp prices.

ANEC cuts Brazil's August soybean export forecast, still headed for monthly record

- August soybean exports expected at 10.56 mil mt
- August meal exports to increase 15.3% year over year
- Corn export volume remains below that of August 2025

Brazilian grain exporters' association ANEC reduced its estimate of soybean exports in August to 10.56 million metric tons, still the highest monthly volume on record.

The current estimate represents a 30.3% increase compared with ANEC's August 2025 data, the association said Aug. 18.

Brazil's soybean exports through the first eight months of 2026 are projected at 95.19 million mt, up 8.0% over the same period in 2025, according to ANEC.

Platts, part of S&P Global Energy, assessed the SOYBEX FOB Santos soybean contract for October loading at $503.78/metric ton on Aug. 17, on the first day of assessment for October 2026 loading.

Soybean meal

ANEC projected shipments of soybean meal at 2.51 million mt in August, slightly below 2.53 million mt predicted in the previous week, but up 24.6% year over year.

The volume, if realized, would bring the January-August total to 17.78 million mt, an increase of 23.1% compared to the same period of 2025.

Poor crush margins continue to cloud the soybean meal supply prospects for the Brazilian domestic market in the coming months, according to sources.

On Aug. 17, a participant said that some plants have soybean coverage of about 45 days. He warned of a potential "short squeeze" in September if buyers with limited coverage were forced back into the market to retake their positions.

Platts assessed the FOB Paranaguá price at $363.76/mt on Aug. 17, the first day of assessment for October 2026 loading.

Corn

ANEC estimated Brazil's August corn shipments at 5.63 million mt, higher than last week's estimate of 5.17 million mt but lower than 7.33 million mt a year earlier.

The association increased its projection for corn exports for January-August to 14.75 million mt, still lower than 16.97 million mt in the same period of 2025.

ANEC also expects 1.45 million mt of corn to be shipped from the port of Santos, São Francisco do Sul, Itacoatiara, Santarém, Barcarena and Santana in the week ending Aug. 22.

The corn market was active the previous week, with corn-ethanol plants and traders negotiating. As a result, the expectation is that the export volume will continue to rise. So far, the export volume remains below that of the same period last season.

Platts assessed FOB Santos corn for October shipment at $232.07/mt Aug. 17, the first day of assessment for October 2026 loading.

ANEC said August projections remain subject to revision as the shipping schedule evolves.

wheat out of the three components of the Milling Wheat Marker, which also includes Ukraine 11.5% at $223.63/mt when adding July's quality normalization of $8.63/mt, to account for its lower protein content, and CVB 12.5% wheat assessed at $271.25/mt on the day. The structure between the first half of September and the second half of September was assessed as flat. This reflects the Platts assessment window of Sept. 15-29.

Platts assessed Black Sea wheat (Russian deepsea, 12.5% protein) down $1/mt at $216/mt Aug. 18, below an offer at $217/mt. Market participants said prices were weaker amid execution risk from deep sea ports. The structure between the first half of September and the second half of September was assessed as flat. This reflects the Platts assessment window of Sept. 15-29.

Platts assessed Black Sea wheat (Ukraine deepsea, 11.5% protein) down $1/mt at $215/mt Aug. 18 amid falls in other wheat markets.
