Commentary and Analysis

Wheat

Platts European Wheat Daily Commentary

- Russian wheat bids rise to $237/mt
- French wheat jumps Eur15/mt on risks
- Ukraine reduces purchases amid strikes

The Black Sea wheat market rose on the day as buyers raised their bids to an increasingly limited and higher offer pool.

The Russian wheat bids for the 12.5% protein were at $237/metric ton for a 50,000 mt vessel, compared to offers ranging from $240-$247/mt, multiple market participants said. "The highest bid I have seen is $237/mt," one Russian seller said. Another seller added that bids could reach $239/mt.

The CIF Egypt market also rose, with buyers opting to trade at $254/mt for the 12.5% market.

Wheat traders in Ukraine said they had reduced CPT purchases on the day amid the intensified war strikes. The market was valued at $230/mt, up $3/mt on the day.

The Sea of Marmara continued to receive no firm offers or bids for spot loadings. "We don't have any offers today," one Turkish miller said.

The French wheat market also rose, continuing on a sharp upward trajectory on the day. Both FOB and CPT were up by Eur 15/mt, riding on the back of an escalating geopolitical situation in the Black Sea and persistent weather concerns, which has injected a significant risk premium, local traders said.

Platts Asia Wheat Daily Commentary

- Australian wheat prices strengthen
- Asian mills yet to face Black Sea shipment delays

Platts assessed both Australian Premium White and Australian Standard White with no protein guarantee up $1/mt day over day at $272/mt and $267/mt, respectively, July 15, partially tracking strength in the Australian dollar and ongoing tight offers for September shipment.

The Australian dollar was trading at 69.88 US cents at 1630 SGT (0830 GMT), up 0.19% day over day and 0.75% week over week.

Several flour millers in Southeast Asia said they had not received any notifications of shipment delays for July-to-August shipments of Black Sea wheat. One of the sources said they had not received vessel nominations from their sellers yet, but still had healthy stocks at mills.

"We will consider [switching some Black Sea demand to Australian wheat] if the price spread is not more than $10/mt," said another source.

CFR offers of Australian Premium White were heard in the high $290s/mt CFR, compared to 11.5% Black Sea wheat at the low to

Meanwhile, most South Korean mills had covered their demand up to November shipment and were unlikely to extend coverage of US milling wheat in the near term as the Chicago Board of Trade futures remain elevated, said a source from the South Korean flour milling industry.

Platts Canada Wheat Daily Commentary

- Canadian wheat prices increase
- Basis weakens as futures rally triggers selling

Platts assessed Canadian Western Red Spring Wheat 13.5% FOB Vancouver 30-45 days forward at $302.95/metric ton July 15, $10.01/mt higher than July 14.

The market remained largely unchanged July 15, even as the December (Z) Minneapolis Hard Red Spring wheat futures contract rose 27.25 cents to 678.25 cents/bu, supported by geopolitical tensions surrounding the Black Sea.

A Canadian trader said it was still too early to determine whether the stronger futures would immediately affect basis levels. The trader also said the rally July 15 had triggered some producer selling, adding that “basis should soften a bit, but it’s still too early to evaluate today’s impact.”

Another Canadian trader also expected the basis to weaken if futures remained elevated, adding, “I imagine there will be a basis adjustment if the futures remain elevated.”

The second trader said farmers remained reluctant sellers despite higher prices as weather developments and renewed Black Sea attacks continued to shift market expectations.

New-crop CWRS was heard around 110 cents/bu over Z, while old-crop September supplies were indicated around 125 cents/bu over Z, reflecting tight nearby availability.

A third trader based in the US said the market was treating September as old crop because harvest development has been slow and concerns remain over new-crop protein levels.

“Originators may hold old crop with the idea they can eventually blend up new crop protein if needed,” the trader said, in context as to why old crop values at 125Z were seen high today. The same trader also reported subdued nearby demand, saying, “I have not seen a bid” for September.

A Taiwan tender traded overnight for US Dark Northern Spring wheat 14.5% protein for September shipment at 190 cents/bu over the September (U) MIAX HRS contract, with a fourth trader saying the level fell within expectations.

Separately, an Asian trader reported wheat prices in Bangladesh at $339/mt, up from $328/mt the previous week, indicating a stronger import value.

Corn

Platts Asia Corn Daily Commentary

- South Korean buyers remain on sidelines
- Vietnam corn offers steady at $262/mt

Asian corn prices remained unchanged July 15 amid a lack of bidding interest from South Korean buyers and firm offer levels.

Platts assessed feed quality corn CFR Northeast Asia unchanged at $265/metric ton for cargoes arriving over Oct. 13 to Nov. 12.

Firm offers for corn were heard to South Korea at $270/mt CFR, although buyers did not respond with any bids.

However, replacement levels were lower, with Platts Corn Arbitrage Price Matrix showing CFR Northeast Asia basis replacement levels at $263.50/mt for Argentina and $266.12/mt for US Pacific Northwest origin.

US Pacific Northwest corn basis offer indications for September shipment were heard unchanged day over day at 145 cents/bushel over September (U) Chicago Board of Trade futures contract.

In Vietnam, South American-origin corn offers were heard unchanged at $262/mt CFR Vietnam for September-shipment partial cargoes.

Platts Latin America Corn Daily Commentary

- Higher FOB prices in Latin America
- Corn storage space is limited in Goiás state

Platts assessed Latin America FOB corn prices higher July 15, as Chicago Board of Trade futures rose.

Argentine FOB Up River premiums for August loading and the Brazilian FOB Santos premiums for August loading remain unchanged during the day.

In Brazil's domestic market, prices were steady in the Sorriso, Rio Verde and Maringá regions.

In Goiás state, sellers returned to the market while buyers remained on the sidelines, a buyer said.

According to a buyer, corn storage space is limited in Goiás state, and the use of silo bags will be necessary.

Corn ethanol companies in the country are already supplied through early 2027.

Brazilian Grain Exporters Association ANEC forecasts Brazil's July corn shipments at 3.44 million mt, higher than last week's estimate of 2.49 million mt but lower than 3.97 million mt a year earlier.

ANEC also expects 638,995 mt of corn to be shipped from the port of Santos, Itacoatiara, Santarém and Barcarena in the week ended July 18.

Platts US Corn Daily Commentary

- Mississippi barge freight rates increase
- Corn basis weakens despite higher logistics

US corn outright prices increased on July 15, tracking the Chicago Board of Trade, which for September (U) future contracts strengthened 9 cents to $4.4750/bu.

Corn futures fell as wheat markets reacted to poor European crops, renewed Russian attacks on Odessa ports, disrupted shipping and weak US wheat harvests, sources said.

During the week, the market has been reporting higher barge freight on the Mississippi River due to higher fuel prices.

July barge freight rates on the Mississippi River system to New Orleans increased week over week. For barges loaded in Lower Ohio, rates rose 35.7% to $0.5306/bushel; in St. Louis, 26.7% to $0.5306/bu; in Mississippi, 17.4% to $1.0054/bu; and in Lower Illinois, 16.1% to $0.8444/bu, according to data from Platts and American Commercial Barge Line.

Meanwhile, for August, rates were reported at 725% from Mid-Mississippi, 700% for Illinois, 625% from Ohio and $600 from St. Louis.

Despite the increase in domestic logistics, sources reported a weaker value basis for corn.

"Corn weak, soybeans firm with limited crush coverage," said a trader.

Platts assessed on July 15 the outright price for July shipments to New Orleans in the incoterm CIF at $215.95/metric ton and for August shipments at $216.35/mt. For September shipments under the FOB Gulf incoterm, prices were assessed at $222.64/mt.

Platts European Corn Daily Commentary

- Black Sea corn trading halts after attacks
- CVB corn prices rise on freight spread widening

The Black Sea corn market remained stable on July 15, with no reported trading activity amid attacks on the port and infrastructure.

"Everyone ran today—the ones who gave prices withdrew," a broker said.

Amid the ongoing conflict, market participants said export trading activity has decreased, and several sellers have halted exports. "Trading activity has decreased for sure," a seller from Kyiv said. "We won't be trading as vessels cannot arrive at the port."

Traders have also reduced CPT purchases. "Many traders have stopped originating as of today [July 15], and we are buying limited amounts," a second seller based in Ukraine said.

A Geneva-based trader expressed similar concerns. "At the moment, it is difficult to understand how to ship from Ukraine. There is no point in accumulating volume," the trader said, noting that with farmers selling at cost and exporters operating at zero margins, the risk is high.

Meanwhile, prices at the CVB market rose amid a widening freight-rate spread between POC and CVB following the attacks. Although liquidity in the corn market remains low, traders said price indications for the new crop have risen.

"The interesting thing is that I don't see people asking for old-crop corn yet," a Romania-based corn seller said. "I think it's too early; people are waiting to see an outcome on this."

- Slow farmer selling, muted buying interests
- June soybean imports hit record 13.55 mil mt

CFR China soybean month-one August shipment was up $2.48/metric ton day over day at $522.13/mt July 15, while basis was up 3 cents/bu at 226 cents/bu over August (Q) Chicago Board of Trade (CBOT) futures.

Overnight, CFR China trading activity remained muted with limited buying interests from China.

"Trading activity has been relatively quiet this week. During the July 13 US trading session, September shipment cargoes were heard traded at 235 cents/bu over November (X) CBOT, basis CFR China.

Another Chinese soybean trader believed that the value of 235 cents/bu over November (X) is still tradable July 15.

A third Chinese soybean trader echoed similar sentiments on slow farmer selling.

"With the slower farmer selling and elevated Brazilian basis levels, it dampened Chinese buying interest, with buyers largely unwilling to chase higher prices," said the trader.

China imported a record 13.55 million mt of soybeans in June, the highest volume for the month, according to General Administration of Customs preliminary data released July 14.

Imports were up 14.9% from May and 10.3% year over year.

Brazil exported 10.28 million mt of soybeans to China in June, accounting for 71% of total shipments, data from the Secretariat of Foreign Trade showed on July 3.

Platts Brazil Soybean Daily Commentary

- Soybean FOB prices rise on higher futures
- FOB Paranaguá basis strengthens for August

Brazilian soybean FOB cash prices rose on July 15, mirroring higher Chicago Board of Trade futures and stronger spot port differentials.

The CBOT August (Q) contract settled at $12.0225/bushel. Sources said a stronger US crushing pace sent a bullish tone through futures, while persistent tensions over the Middle East conflict remained on traders' radar.

NOPA reported that US soybean processors crushed 214.34 million bushels in June, exceeding market expectations as processing activity recovered from May and was supported by favorable crush margins and solid demand for soybean products.

Nearby premiums continued to strengthen in the FOB Paranaguá paper market, with August parcels heard traded at plus 108 cents/bu and plus 110 cents/bu to the CBOT benchmarks.

The FOB Santos cargo market, in turn, posted a relatively quiet session, without deals confirmed amid a wider offer-bid gap for prompt shipments.

Platts US Soybeans Daily Commentary

- Market players hear China active in US market
- NOPA's June crushing numbers surpass expectations

The US soybeans market saw outright prices increase on July 15 amid unconfirmed reports of China being active in the US and monthly crushing numbers rising above market expectations.

Platts assessed SOYBEX FOB New Orleans for August shipment $4.23/metric ton higher from July 14 at $485.48/mt. Platts assessed basis for FOB Gulf for August shipment up 2 cents day over day to 119 cents/bushel over the August (Q) soybeans futures contract.

Platts assessed the outright price for CIF New Orleans for July shipment $3.49/mt higher on the day at $481.07/mt. Platts assessed basis for CIF NOLA for July shipment remained unchanged at 107 cents/bu over the August (Q) soybeans futures contract.

Sources in the US market reported that China started the day buying Argentine soybeans, but later turned to the US Pacific Northwest. The reports, which could not be confirmed, boosted the FOB Gulf basis and the futures market, with CBOT August (Q) futures climbing 9.50 cents on the day to 1,202.25 cents/bu.

Three traders said China was heard active in the US soybean market, with one of the traders hearing the activity was specifically focused on the West Coast.

"[China] started the day bidding Argentina," another of the traders, who works in the CIF New Orleans market, said. "But then came back to the US, and that's why things turned around in soybeans."

In data news, the National Oilseed Processors Association on July 15 published its June crushing numbers, which were above market expectations. Some 214.34 million bu were crushed during June, above the 204 million bu estimated by market participants and surpassing S&P Global Energy CERA's expectations, the NOPA data showed.

The soybean oil stocks were at 1.5 billion pounds, slightly below the 1.65-billion-lb expectations, the data showed.

The crush volume was well above S&P Global Energy CERA analysts' expectations.

"We were looking for 207 million bu, and it came in at 214 million bu," crop principal analyst at CERA, Aaron Gerdts, said. "The implied total crush is around 219.6 million bu. Soybean oil stocks were also a little lower than usual."

Platts Latin America Soybean Meal Daily Commentary

- FOB spot prices increase on higher CBOT futures
- FOB Paranaguá trades further higher for August

South American soybean meal FOB prices rose on July 15 amid higher Chicago Board of Trade futures prices.

The CBOT August (Q) contract settled at $318.90/short ton, up $1.50/st, as a stronger US crushing pace sent a bullish tone through futures, sources said. Persistent tensions over the Middle East conflict were also on traders' radar.

The Argentine FOB Up River cargo market saw subdued activity, while Brazil's FOB Paranaguá continued to strengthen for prompt shipments, with August parcels trading at a $5/st premium to the CBOT benchmarks during the session.

According to S&P Global Energy CERA analysts, rising Brazilian soybean prices week over week have pressured nearby crush margins, although they remained above average.

“However, forward margins are near the breakeven point, raising some concerns about crush activity in the last quarter of 2026,” the CERA analysts said in the Global Soybean Complex Short-Term Outlook released July 10.

Platts European Animal Feed Daily Commentary

- Dutch soybean meal turns bearish on bids
- CBOT futures drive European prices higher

Northern Europe

The Dutch soybean meal was bearish July 15, with higher offers and bids for August loading.

The FOB Netherlands offer for August loading is at Eur370/mt with bids reported at Eur360/mt, according to a Dutch trader. He added that US weather and higher oil prices, compounded by the WASDE report's projection of strong global demand for soybean meal, pushed CBOT futures higher.

“The market is very quiet now, but there are very few bids which can be spotted,” a broker based in the Netherlands said.

Southern Europe

The Spanish soybean meal market was no different from the Northern Europe market.

The current price rise is due to higher CBOT futures, with the tradable level above Eur360/mt for the July-August period, according to a trader.

According to corn traders, offers rose amid higher CBOT futures on July 15, with no bids or trades reported.

Platts US Distiller Grains DDGS Daily Commentary

- Export demand lags on high prices vs other ingredients
- Lower ethanol output supports nearby values: source

The US dried distillers grains with solubles market stayed quiet July 15, with participants reporting limited CIF activity while questioning whether current values remain competitive against alternative feed ingredients.

Platts assessed CIF New Orleans dried distillers grains with solubles barges for the July shipment period at $198/short ton on Jul 15, the Chicago DDGS truck market for the July delivery period was assessed at $175/st, and the South California rail market for the July delivery period was assessed at $228/st.

One trader said the export market continues to lag other domestic channels. “CIF is just lagging these other markets,” the trader said, adding that easing rail markets could eventually send more DDGS toward the Gulf if prices fail to correct.

The trader also said that export logistics could shift later this year as grain shipments take priority. “DDGS will get minimal loading in the Gulf Sept. forward as we focus on grain,” the source said, adding that October to December values could receive support from lower production and stronger feed demand later in the year. However, the trader argued that nearby DDGS remains expensive relative to competing ingredients. "It's not a strong value versus meal or corn at these inflated values," the source said.

Another trader described the CIF market as quiet, with no significant changes in barge traffic. "The Mississippi and Ohio rivers are operating under normal conditions," the trader said. "This week has been quiet. I haven't heard of any trades. Bid-offer spreads are wide."

The trader added that international buyers continue to resist current price levels. "There is demand, but buyers are not ready to purchase at higher values than the last trades from three weeks ago," the source said. "DDGS has increased more than corn and soybean meal, so it's probably too expensive right now."

The trader added, however, that lower ethanol production this week may be limiting DDGS supply and helping prevent prices from falling further.

Weekly ethanol production for the week ending July 10 was reported at 1.040 million barrels/day, a 4.85% decrease from the previous week, according to the Energy Information Administration.

A South American broker said seasonal demand patterns could help explain why deferred values remain stronger. "Domestic summer demand is lower than during the rest of the year, while demand increases significantly in the fourth quarter," the broker said.

Another broker added that freight costs continue to provide support. "Freight has been high and moving higher with all of the increased China sales," the broker said, adding that some nearby trading activity had resumed.

- South American soy oil prices rise on CBOT gains
- US stocks fall 13.5% amid strong crush: report

South American soybean oil cash prices for August loading firmed July 15, tracking gains in Chicago Board of Trade soybean oil futures.

Platts, part of S&P Global Energy, assessed Brazilian soybean oil FOB Paranaguá for August loading at $1,197.55/mt July 15, up $7.05/mt from July 14. September loading was assessed at $1,176.83/mt, up $4.85/mt day over day.

CBOT August (Q) soybean oil futures settled 0.52 cent/lb higher at 72.92 cents/lb, compared with 72.40 cents/lb in the previous session.

Futures found support from a tighter-than-expected US soybean oil stocks figure. The National Oilseed Processors Association (NOPA) reported on July 15 that end-June stocks were at 1.501 billion lb, down 13.5% from May. Stocks declined despite a larger-than-expected June soybean crush of 214.34 million bushels, indicating strong soybean oil demand.

In Brazil, negotiations for both August and September loading remained sparse, with limited bids and offers throughout the day. Indications moved lower toward the end of the session, with both bids and offers declining. The best bid-offer spread widened to 100 points at the close from 70 points the previous day.

In Argentina, Platts reported a trade for August loading at the August (Q) CBOT soybean oil futures contract minus 1,940 points. Market participants said the traded level continued to guide the market at the close.

Platts assessed Argentine soybean oil FOB Up River for August loading at $1,179.91/mt July 15, up $4.85/mt from July 14.

Platts Europe Vegetable Oil Daily Commentary

- Rapeseed oil extends increases on supply concerns
- Logistics risks offset weaker European demand
- Freight uncertainty clouds Black Sea price direction

The European vegetable oil markets strengthened further on July 15, with rapeseed oil extending increases across the forward curve, while sunflower oil remained unchanged despite growing geopolitical uncertainty in the Black Sea.

RSO FOB Dutch Mills front-month rose €18 to €1,196/metric ton, while second position rose €3 to €1,177/mt. Third and fourth positions were unchanged at €1,166/mt and €1,161/mt, respectively. FOB Black Sea sunflower oil remained stable at $1,379/mt, although market participants increasingly pointed to logistical disruption rather than underlying supply and demand as the principal market driver.

A Ukraine-based trader said the sunflower oil market was “very bidirectional,” adding that recent strikes on port infrastructure and ships in the Odesa region have made sellers increasingly cautious because of uncertainty surrounding export logistics.

Freight has become a key variable, with some ships reportedly refusing to call at Odesa ports. While such disruptions would normally support destination prices, the trader said that if freight costs rise beyond buyers' willingness to pay, exporters may instead be pushed to lower FOB Ukraine prices to maintain competitiveness.

The trader also highlighted increasingly mixed demand fundamentals. July demand from Europe was heard weakening, while export flows to Europe remained within normal seasonal levels and were running above those recorded during the first 12 days of June.

Higher export availability, alongside softer demand, is limiting bullish momentum despite logistical disruption.

For Europe, the market remained caught between competing bullish and bearish influences. Escalating logistical risks and damage to export infrastructure continued to underpin sentiment, while softer European demand, steady export flows and uncertainty surrounding freight economics limited the extent to which these disruptions can be reflected in FOB values.

The continued strength in rapeseed oil suggests market participants remained focused on regional supply security, even as the sunflower oil market remained constrained by opposing forces and elevated uncertainty.

Grain traders in Ukraine have reduced local purchases following a series of intensified port strikes since July 10, market participants said July 15.

“Many traders have stopped originating as of [July 15], and we are buying limited amounts,” a Ukrainian seller said. “We have stocks at the ports, but new purchases are limited.”

Kernel, one of Ukraine's largest agribusiness companies, reported extensive damage to its port assets at Chornomorsk after the July 10 attacks.

"The attacks damaged grain loading and unloading equipment, terminal infrastructure, and power supply lines," the company said in a statement July 13. "Grain silos and sunflower oil storage tanks were destroyed or severely damaged, resulting in the blockage, spillage, and quality deterioration of approximately 45,000 mt of wheat and 9,000 mt of sunflower oil. The timeline for resuming terminal operations will depend on the completion of emergency response works and the findings of the engineering assessment."

With the ongoing conflict, market participants said that export trading activity for the old-crop corn has nearly stopped, while price indications for the new crop have surged early in the week.

"Trading activity has decreased for sure," a second seller from Kyiv said.

The seller added that their company would decide later whether to halt CPT purchases on July 15. "We won't be trading as vessels cannot arrive at the port," the seller said.

On July 14, CPT corn prices stood at $211/mt and milling wheat at $209/mt. "I think traders are now putting some risk premiums into CPT prices," a fourth seller from Ukraine said. Platts assessed Ukraine corn FOB POC at $226/mt on July 15 for Aug. 12-26 shipment, stable day over day.

The strikes have lifted wheat export prices at the marketing time for the newly harvested new crop, which was already delayed by one to two weeks. Platts assessed Ukrainian 11.5% wheat at $230/mt on July 15, up $7/mt from July 10.

Disruption to shipping routes

The situation is causing significant disruption to shipping. A fifth local seller estimated that 30%-40% of shipowners scheduled to call Ukrainian ports in the second half of July and first half of August have cancelled voyages, with liner carriers likely to suspend operations soon.

The strikes follow similar strikes at the Azov Sea where trading activity for coasters along the Kerch Strait have also been limited.

"The problem is bringing vessels to the Black Sea," another Ukrainian trader said.

A Geneva-based trader expressed similar concerns.

Platts Ukraine FOB corn and wheat 11.5% prices

"At the moment, it is difficult to understand how to ship from Ukraine," the trader said. "There is no point in accumulating volume."

With farmers selling at cost and exporters facing zero margins, risk is high, the trader said.

Brazil's July soybean export forecast raised to 13.76 million mt: Anec

- Soybean July exports to increase 15% YOY
- Soybean meal shipments to rise to 2.57 mil mt
- Corn export expectations increased for July

Brazil is expected to export 13.76 million metric tons of soybeans in July, a record for the month and higher than 12.26 million mt predicted in the previous week, according to projections released by the Brazilian Grain Exporters Association (Anec) July 14.

The volume would be 15.2% higher year over year, also nearly matching the 13.84 million mt exported in June 2026. Anec's estimate is based on the current shipment schedule at the country's ports.

If confirmed, Brazil will have exported 86.34 million mt of soybeans between January and July this year, up 8% from the same period in 2025.

Brazil is the world's largest soybean producer and exporter. Traders have remained attentive to discussions regarding a Provisional Measure aimed at strengthening compliance with minimum road freight rates, as concerns persist that independent truck drivers could launch strikes across the country.

On July 14, Platts assessed SOYBEX FOB Santos for August at $480.91/mt, up 74 cents/mt day over day.

Soybean meal

Anec projected that Brazil will export 2.57 million mt of soybean meal in July, up from 2.14 million mt a year earlier.

As a result, cumulative exports from January to July would reach 15.31 million mt, up 14.2% year over year.

Brazil is the world's second-largest soybean meal exporter, behind only Argentina, and FOB premiums have strengthened in recent days amid a round of contract pricing in the domestic market, according to sources.

Platts assessed soybean meal FOB Paranaguá for August shipment at $354.28/mt, up $2.43/mt day over day.

Corn

ANEC forecasts Brazil's July corn shipments at 3.44 million mt, higher than last week's estimate of 2.49 million mt but lower than 3.97 million mt a year earlier.

The association projects corn exports for January-July at 9.66 million mt, slightly higher than 9.63 million mt in the same period of 2025.

ANEC also expects 638,995 mt of corn to be shipped from the port of Santos, Itacoatiara, Santarém and Barcarena in the week ended July 18.

Corn exports increased in July and are expected to remain at high levels throughout the second half of the year. This is happening as the harvest progresses across the country.

Platts assessed FOB Santos corn for August shipment at $219.87/mt July 14, down 98 cents/mt day over day.

ANEC said July projections remain subject to revision as the shipping schedule evolves.

French wheat prices hit record high amid Sea of Azov disruptions, EU heat wave

- Black Sea shipping risks boost price premium
- EU heatwave threatens remaining spring crops

French wheat prices hit a record high on July 14, as renewed geopolitical tensions around the Black Sea and the Middle East combined with worsening weather risks across the EU.

Platts, part of S&P Global Energy, assessed wheat at Eur219.25/metric ton ($250.40/mt) FOB and Eur217/mt CPT Rouen on July 14, the highest since July 2025 when Platts began assessing the FOB market.

Last week, there were reports of disruption to Russian shipping in the Sea of Azov, a critical route for Russian wheat exports. Local media reported that Ukrainian strikes on Russian tankers prompted Russia to temporarily halt shipping from the Don River into the Sea of Azov — a route that handles about 25% of Russian wheat exports.

Additionally, the heatwave sweeping through the EU is expected to further strain crops, with late-season winter wheat and all spring crops seen as particularly exposed, market sources said.

Platts French Wheat prices hit record high

Some winter crops already harvested have partial protection, but the market is “once again drawing support from weather concerns,” recouping part of losses from the sharp correction at the end of May, a French wheat broker said.

“The geopolitical risk premium has overshadowed the ongoing harvest pressure and the market is starting to price in the risk of prolonged export disruptions,” the broker said.

In France, the soft wheat harvest is progressing with 59% complete, according to FranceAgriMer, compared with a five-year average of 16% at this time of year. The agency said crop condition ratings slipped by 3% to good/excellent, though it added that the measure is becoming less indicative as harvesting progresses.

A trader attributed the unusually rapid pace to an early, sustained heat spell that accelerated crop development. The trader noted that while winter grain harvest has started and provides some buffer for wheat and barley, spring barley and corn remain vulnerable.

The European Association of Cereals and Oilseed Traders' July crop forecast put expected wheat production (excluding durum) at 140.8 million mt, down from the previous estimate of 143.7 million mt and compared with 149.8 million mt in 2025, due to severe heat and dryness in France and Eastern Europe.

On the destination side, Morocco's domestic wheat harvest remains active, according to a Morocco-based trader, with total collected volume estimated at around 500,000 mt, roughly 15% of the total wheat crop.

Daily arrivals are running at about 15,000 mt nationwide. Earlier market estimates placed collected volume closer to 350,000 mt, with daily arrivals between 15,000 mt and 20,000 mt, the trader said. Available wheat stocks were estimated at around 2 million mt, equivalent to roughly five months of milling demand.

SOUTH KOREA DATA: June corn imports decline slightly; US maintains over 80% share

- South Korea June corn imports fall 10% YOY
- US maintains 86.6% share of total volume

South Korea imported 861,510 metric tons of corn in June, down 9.98% month over month and 10% year over year, according to data from the Korea Customs Service released July 15.

Imports from the US continued to account for the bulk of June inflows, at 746,391 mt, or about 86.6% of the total volume. The dominance of US corn has remained consistent year over year, with South Korea having imported 7.6 million mt of US corn in 2025.

Ukraine shipped only 86,836 mt of corn in June, while Argentina supplied 52,726 mt, according to the customs data.

Although prices of US corn for June imports/March-April shipment rose month over month, they remained highly competitive, with deals concluded at $244.38-$252.39/mt CFR South Korea across January and February 2026, according to data from Platts, part of S&P Global Energy.

Top five suppliers for South Korean corn imports in June 2026 (mt)

Platts Ags EMEA Wheat Daily Rationale

Platts assessed the Milling Wheat Marker at $236.75/metric ton on July 15, up $3.75/mt from the previous assessment. Ukraine 11.5% handysize wheat, assessed at $230/mt, was normalised to the nearest 25 cents of $236.75/mt when adding June's quality normalisation of $6.63/mt, to account for its lower protein content, was the most competitive wheat out of the three components of the Milling Wheat Marker, which also includes CVB 12.5%, assessed at $248/mt, and Russian 12.5% wheat assessed at $238/mt on the day. The structure between the first and second halves of August was assessed as flat. This reflects the Platts assessment window from Aug. 12-26.

Platts assessed Black Sea wheat (Russian deepsea, 12.5% protein) up $5/mt at $238/mt on July 15, above a bid at $237/mt and below an offer at $240/mt. The structure between the first and second halves of August was assessed as flat. This reflects the Platts assessment window from Aug. 12-26.

Platts assessed Black Sea wheat (Ukraine deepsea, 11.5% protein) up at $230/mt on July 15, in line with an indicative value at $230/mt. Market participants said there was minimal trading activity amid ongoing war escalations at the ports. The structure between the first and second halves of August was assessed as flat. This reflects the Platts assessment window from Aug. 12-26.

Exclusions: No market data was excluded from the July 15 Black Sea wheat assessments.
