Commentary and Analysis

Wheat

Platts European Wheat Daily Commentary

- Milling wheat market declines on lower offers
- Baltic ports lack capacity for Russian wheat
- Buyers wait as physical demand remains slow

The milling wheat market declined Sept. 8 amid lower offers. An offer was reported at $211/mt FOB Novo for October-loading cargoes, with one trader noting it was favorable for those with cargo in port silos.

The same trader said redirecting shipments to the Baltics is expensive due to high freight costs and limited loading options.

Another trader agreed, stating that Baltic elevation capacities are heavily limited and many cargoes have already been sold.

A news agency reported Sept. 7 that Latvia's proposed 300% tariff on grain from Russia and Belarus could add uncertainty to regional grain trade flows, possibly restricting an alternative export route for Russian grain amid ongoing disruptions in Black Sea shipping.

A second trader said that if Black Sea ports remain closed, the Baltic cannot handle all of Russia's wheat.

A third trader said current demand from major Russian buyers is limited, and the physical market is slow as buyers wait for prices to potentially decrease.

Platts Asia Wheat Daily Commentary

- Australian wheat prices climb $1/mt Sept. 8
- Buyers adopt wait-and-see stance on purchases
- Black Sea uncertainty keeps market muted

Australian wheat prices rose on Sept. 8 amid higher futures levels seen during Asian trading hours, while destination buyers continued to hold a wait-and-see attitude towards purchasing and preferences remain for small volume transactions.

Platts Australian Premium White assessment rose $1/mt to $316/mt FOB Kwinana, while Australian Standard White wheat with no protein guarantee climbed $1/mt to $307/mt on Sept. 8.

A Singapore-based wheat trader and a miller source both observed higher futures and firmer physical cargo prices on Sept. 8, amid the Asian trading hours of the Chicago Board of Trade futures market.

"There was some hope [for price decline] last week, but this week things are turning around again," the miller source said.

"APW is pretty much unchanged in Western Australia...[Market participants] are still in wait and watching mode, growers not engaging at the current level, buyers still price checking," a grains supplier said.

Old crop November shipment indications for APW were reported at $320/mt FOB WA, while ASW9 indications were reported at $315/mt FOB. A spread of $2-$3/mt between ASW9 and ASW1, with no protein guarantee, was reported.

"Demand is really not there; no deals heard today. Indonesia still needs October shipments, with about 50% covered. Meanwhile, millers cannot stop operations and must buy a bit," said a Singapore-based grains analyst.

The Singapore miller source said that the market was "muted" and that "everyone knows that if the Black Sea disruption is resolved, prices will drop too much and no one wants to be caught in that situation."

Platts Canada Wheat Daily Commentary

- Rain impacts Canadian wheat quality
- Ocean freight costs rise amid export demand

Platts assessed Canada Western Red Spring Wheat 13.5% FOB Vancouver 30-45 days forward at $322.98/metric tons on Sep. 8, up $3.31/mt from the previous session, as traders reported signs that recent rainfall was affecting specifications while export values continued to rise.

The December Minneapolis Hard Red Spring wheat futures contract rose 9 cents/bu to settle at 754.00 cents/bu Sept. 8.

One trader indicated CWRs No. 2 13.5% protein at $380/mt CFR Chittagong, Bangladesh, for November, with ocean freight around $48-$49/mt, still pending confirmation, as another trader mentioned freight was moving up on the day.

Another trader said sellers were beginning to adjust quality specifications as rain affected the Canadian harvest. "We are seeing sellers moving generic Falling Number spec to 275," the trader said, adding that sellers were also offering wheat at 14.5% moisture.

"These rains are having an impact," the trader said.

The higher CFR indication also reflected stronger transportation costs rather than solely higher wheat values. "Ocean freight is up and up," the trader said.

Quality has become an increasing focus after market participants reported lower protein levels and harvest delays last week, with uncertainty over whether further rainfall could result in additional quality downgrades.

Corn

Platts Asia Corn Daily Commentary

- Freight rates rise $2-$3/mt across routes
- South Korean buyers wait without target prices
- CFR Northeast Asia rises $2.50/mt on day to $296/mt

Asian destination corn prices rose Sept. 8, tracking higher freight rates, while market participants were on the sidelines amid a lack of basis premium indications due to the US Labor Day holiday.

Platts assessed the feed quality corn CFR Northeast Asia price for cargoes arriving over Dec. 7 to Jan. 6, up $2.50/metric ton day over day at $296/mt CFR on Sept. 8.

South Korean buyers were silent Sept. 8. "Looks like there is still no target price and buyers are watching the market," the local trade agent said.

Freight rates shifted higher on day by $2-$3/mt, with the Brazil-Pyeongtaek estimate heard at $60-$62/mt, Argentina-Pyeongtaek at $67-$71/mt and US Pacific Northwest-Pyeongtaek

From December 16 to May 15 the prompt Brazil loading month value is not published.

The FOB Up River premiums for October loading were unchanged.

The Brazilian FOB Santos premiums for October loading rose amid no buyer interest.

The US dollar/Brazilian real exchange rate stood at 5.0867 reais/$1 as of 5:30 pm Brasilia time, down 0.82% from Sept. 4.

In Brazil's domestic market, prices dropped in the Sorriso, Rio Verde, and Maringá regions.

A buyer in the Rio Verde region said that spot market prices have been fluctuating based on negotiated payment terms, while producers continue to seek higher prices.

The summer corn planting for the 2026-27 season in Brazil's Center-South region reached 17% as of Sept. 3, up from 11% a week earlier and higher than 12% in the year-ago week, according to private consultancy AgRural on Sept 7.

AgRural reported that, as is typical for this time of year, summer corn planting remains limited to the Southern states and is being driven by Rio Grande do Sul.

The US corn market saw outright prices fall on Sept. 8, with subdued trading heard a day after the Labor Day holiday and soybean exports in the limelight, sources say.

Platts, part of S&P Global Energy, assessed the CIF New Orleans outright price for US yellow corn No. 2 for September shipment down $1.25/metric ton from Sept. 4 at $238.80/mt.

Platts assessed the CIF New Orleans outright price for October shipment down $1.25/mt from the previous business day at $245.10/mt.

Both Platts assessed basis for CIF NOLA for September and October shipments remained steady day over day at 73 cents/bu and 89 cents/bu, respectively, over the December (Z) corn futures contract.

The FOB Gulf outright price for US yellow corn No. 2 for November shipment was assessed down $2.46/mt from Sept. 4 at $250.98/mt. Platts assessed basis for FOB Gulf for November shipment was at 104 cents/bu over the December (Z) corn futures contract.

Chicago Board of Trade December (Z) corn futures contract fell 3.25 cents day over day to 533.5 cents/bu.

Sources in the CIF NOLA market said that corn is taking a back seat while soybean exports keep dynamic.

"The corn program is slow to build," a trader in that market said. "And the Lower Mississippi is sitting on loaded corn barges. Barge freight is expensive, and rail freight isn't performing great either, at least for September as harvest ramps up."

The US Department of Agriculture published its Grains Inspected and/or Weighed for Export weekly report on Sept. 8, showing that 1.662 million mt of corn were inspected during the week that ended on Sept. 3. This is 163,841 more than the previous week, and 219,317 mt more than the same week of 2025.

Since the start of the marketing year on Sept. 1, about 635,789 mt have been inspected for export, compared to 649,770 mt during the previous marketing year.

“Last year we operated on maximum levels for most of the entire marketing year due to the lack of a China soybean program, which opened up capacity for more corn shipments,” a second trader in the CIF NOLA market said. “This year, things are not as optimistic on the corn export front due to high overall price levels keeping importers a tad more hand-to-mouth, as well as the US carrying a premium to offers in Argentina.”

The USDA is expected to release its World Agricultural Supply and Demand Estimates on Sept. 11.

Platts European Corn Daily Commentary

- Black Sea corn market holds steady
- Egyptian buyers resist forward corn commitments

The Black Sea corn market remained steady Sept. 8 amid no fresh trading activity, with market participants continuing to monitor logistics and the new-crop harvest.

Ukrainian corn pricing held stable, with no new offers emerging to test current levels. Market sources noted an absence of buyers for FOB Ukrainian corn, allowing sellers to maintain their price indications.

The CVB market edged 50 cents higher to $276.50/metric ton despite CBOT December corn futures falling 1.2%. The October bid-offer spread narrowed to about 30 cents/bushel over December corn futures, from 35 cents/bu previously, with sellers at 190 cents/bu over and buyers at 160 cents/bu over.

Market sources said Egyptian buyers were showing limited interest in forward bookings.

“No one is interested to pay for corn that may not arrive to Egypt,” one source said, highlighting ongoing concerns about logistics reliability and delivery timing.

Platts assessed CFR China soybean month-one October shipment up $1.19/mt day over day at $592.86/mt Sept. 8, while the basis was unchanged at 300 cents/bu over November (X) Chicago Board of Trade (CBOT) futures.

Overnight, thin trading activity in the CFR China market was reported, with the Chicago Board of Trade futures market closed for the Labor Day holiday, while Brazilian market participants were away due to the country's Independence Day celebrations, leaving market participants with little market guidance.

China's state-owned Sinograin will auction 68,000 mt of imported soybeans from state reserves Sept. 9, according to a notice published by the National Grain Trade Center Sept. 4.

The auction, scheduled for 1:30 pm Beijing time, will offer soybeans from the 2022, 2024 and 2025 crop years, according to the notice. The auction will include lots in Sichuan and Guangxi.

The previous auction held Sept. 2 saw no sales of the 68,000 mt offered, according to China-based grain traders.

Platts Brazil Soybean Daily Commentary

- Thin trading activity in Paranaguá
- CBOT futures climb on tight supplies, active Chinese buying

Platts assessed the SOYBEX FOB Santos soybean contract for October loading at $540.62/metric ton on Sept. 8, up $4.60/mt from the previous assessed Sept. 4

CBOT soybean futures settled higher, driven by tight US crop conditions, higher soybean oil prices and active Chinese state buying, despite a cautious approach ahead of the Sept. 11 US Department of Agriculture's World Agricultural Supply and Demand Estimates report, analysts said.

According to private consulting firm AgRural, planting of Brazil's 2026-27 soybean crop has begun in parts of Paraná following the end of the state's sanitary fallow period on Sept. 1.

As of Sept. 3, 0.05% of Brazil's projected soybean area had been planted, all in Paraná, up from 0.02% at the same time last year. Favorable rainfall earlier in the week helped producers start fieldwork for the new season.

AgRural said planting conditions in Paraná were supported by recent moisture, while activity in Mato Grosso is expected to pick up after the state's sanitary fallow period ended on Sept. 7. Initial planting is likely to occur in irrigated areas intended for second-crop cotton, although many growers in rainfed regions are still waiting for improved soil moisture before beginning sowing.

There was thin trading activity in the FOB-Paranaguá paper market with no trades heard on the day.

FOB soybean values strengthened in both Brazil and the US Gulf compared with the previous week. While US soybeans remain seasonally competitive as the market enters its peak export period, stronger increases in Brazilian values widened the premium of Santos over the Gulf compared with the week ended Sept. 4.

The US dollar versus the Brazilian real settled at 5.0855 reais/US dollar at 4:30 pm Brasilia time. Domestic soybean prices were higher in the main producing regions.

Platts US Soybeans Daily Commentary

- CIF New Orleans sees active soybean trading
- China inquires about US soybean purchases
- Weekly inspections reach 422,016 metric tons

The US market saw outright prices rise on Sept. 8, with active CIF New Orleans trading and unconfirmed reports circulating among participants indicating that China was inquiring about US soybeans.

Platts, part of S&P Global Energy, assessed SOYBEX FOB New Orleans for October shipment up $1.29/metric ton Sept. 8, up from $528.47/mt on Sept. 4. Platts assessed basis for FOB Gulf for October shipment fell 3 cents day over day to 122 cents/bushel over the November (X) soybeans futures contract.

Platts assessed the outright price for CIF New Orleans for September shipment at $2.38/mt, up from the previous business day at $521.48/mt. Platts assessed basis for CIF NOLA for September shipment remained unchanged day over day at 103 cents/bu over the November (X) soybeans futures contract.

Dynamic trading activity was reported in the CIF NOLA market on Sept. 8, sources said, as soybean exports became the main focus.

"Bean CIF has been active, corn not as much," a trader in the CIF NOLA market said. "Soybeans are just taking the focus of exporters."

"Trade remains optimistic that China will fulfill its 25 million mt pledge," a second trader in the CIF NOLA market said.

Unlike Chicago Board of Trade corn futures contracts, the November (X) soybeans contract rose 6.5 cents on Sept. 8 to 1,316.25 cents/bu.

The US Department of Agriculture released its Grains Inspected and/or Weighed for Export weekly report on Sept. 8, showing that 422,016 mt of soybeans were inspected during the week ended Sept. 3. This amount is 137,965 mt more than the previous week but 45,608 mt less than the same week in 2025.

About 115,187 mt went to Egypt, 58,374 mt went to Germany, and 57,327 mt went to Bangladesh.

The USDA's World Agricultural Supply and Demand Estimates monthly report is expected to be released on Sept. 11.

Platts Latin America Soybean Meal Daily Commentary

- LatAm premiums stay flat
- FOB prices decrease

Latin America FOB soybean meal prices fell Sept. 8, tracking Chicago Board of Trade futures.

The CBOT October (V) contract settled at $343.30/short ton, down $4.90/st from Sept. 4.

Argentine FOB Up River premiums for October loading and the Brazilian FOB Paranaguá premiums for October loading were unchanged during the day.

A trade was heard on the day in FOB Paranaguá for November-December loading at plus $19/short ton to the December (Z) futures at the Chicago Board of Trade.

Soybean planting for the 2026-27 crop season is already advancing in some areas of Paraná. In that state, some regions already have the end of the sanitary void as of Sept. 1. Areas in Paraná reached 0.05% sown by Sept. 3, up from 0.02% in the year-ago week, according to private consultancy AgRural on Sept. 7. In addition to the end of the sanitary void, some good rains recorded earlier last week created conditions for sowing in Paraná.

AgRural reported that in Mato Grosso, where the sanitary void ended Sept. 7, the expectation is that planting will expand over pivot-irrigated areas. In dryland areas, most producers tend to wait until soil moisture improves before sowing.

The Spanish corn market was slightly firm Sept. 8.

Spanish brokers and traders reported a trade for corn EXW Tarragona at €248/metric ton.

Market participants noted that buyers are cautious, holding off in anticipation of further declines. They will probably not return in large numbers until next week, after the USDA report is released and absorbed.

Another trader said feed wheat is currently more expensive than corn, offered at €255/mt for the September-October period.

Platts US Distiller Grains DDGS Daily Commentary

- Asian buying interest emerges
- Wide spreads limit trade

The US dried distillers grains with solubles market remained quiet Sept. 8, with wide bid-offer spreads limiting trade, although participants reported signs of renewed buying interest as customers looked toward forward coverage.

Platts assessed CIF New Orleans dried distillers grains with solubles barges for the September shipment period at $237/short ton on Sept. 8, the Chicago DDGS truck market for the September delivery period was assessed at $202/st, and the South California rail market for the September delivery period was assessed at $260/st.

One trader said the market was “still quiet,” but reported receiving requests for updated values from Asian customers earlier in the session. The source said buyers appeared to be getting closer to returning to the market.

An Asian trader also expected buyers to eventually accept higher values, adding that winter typically brings stronger domestic US feed consumption.

A broker described DDGS values as tight and said current conditions would normally be expected to generate some trade ahead of the USDA report Sept. 11. “Feels like there should be some trade going into this report,” the broker said. However, markets remained “very wide and generic,” with relatively few participants active.

Meanwhile, a third trader reported interest in working October-December against January-March spreads at small carries. The source said producers with unsold product appeared to be trying to move nearby supply through spreads rather than outright flat-price sales, helping maintain support in futures.

“I think we need to start putting a carry in this market in a bigger way for sure,” the trader said.

Platts Latin America Soybean Oil Daily Commentary

- CBOT soybean oil futures rise 1.93% to 70.22 cents/lb
- Argentine FOB prices climb to $1,217.39/mt
- Brazilian premiums widen over Argentina by $17.64

South American soybean oil FOB prices increased Sept. 8 as Chicago Board of Trade soybean oil futures moved higher, while weaker export basis levels in Argentina and Brazil offset part of the gains in the underlying market.

CBOT October soybean oil futures settled at 70.22 cents/lb, up 1.33 cents/lb, or 1.93%, from Sept. 4.

The higher settlement came during another volatile session. October soybean oil futures fell to an early-morning low of around 68.73 cents/lb before gradually recovering through the trading day and settling near the session highs.

Market participants said the continued intraday swings in CBOT soybean oil remained a constraint on liquidity in the Argentine FOB Up River and Brazilian FOB Paranaguá paper markets, as rapidly changing futures levels made it more difficult to maintain bids, offers and indicative values.

The Sept. 8 session followed the Sept. 7 holidays in both the US and Brazil, with market activity resuming after Labor Day in the US and Independence Day in Brazil.

In Argentina, Platts, part of S&P Global Energy, assessed soybean oil FOB Up River for October loading at $1,217.39/mt Sept. 8, up $2.86/mt from Sept. 4.

The October Up River paper basis weakened 120 points to minus 1,500 points against the CBOT October soybean oil futures contract. The increase in futures was sufficient to more than offset the softer differential, lifting the outright Argentine FOB assessment.

In Brazil, Platts assessed soybean oil FOB Paranaguá for October loading at $1,235.03/mt, up $13.89/mt from Sept. 4.

The October Paranaguá paper basis weakened 70 points to minus 1,420 points against CBOT October futures. The smaller basis adjustment relative to Argentina allowed the Brazilian outright assessment to rise more sharply.

Brazilian October soybean oil was assessed at a $17.64/mt premium to the comparable Argentine value, while the Paranaguá basis stood 80 points stronger than the Up River basis. The wider differential indicated comparatively firmer nearby pricing in Brazil following the holiday.

Brazil's November market also strengthened. Platts assessed soybean oil FOB Paranaguá for November loading at $1,230.18/mt, up $11.68/mt from Sept. 4.

The November Paranaguá basis weakened 90 points to minus 1,490 points against the CBOT December soybean oil futures contract. October maintained a $4.85/mt premium to November, while the nearby basis stood 70 points stronger than the deferred position.

The Sept. 8 session again reflected the tendency for South American export differentials to move inversely to CBOT futures. Basis levels weakened as the underlying market rallied, but the adjustments were smaller than the futures increase, resulting in higher outright FOB values across both origins.

Market participants said elevated futures volatility continued to complicate regional price discovery, while Brazilian pricing showed comparatively greater firmness than Argentina. Export demand, crush economics and regional commercial activity remained important drivers of South American physical soybean oil values.

Platts Europe Vegetable Oil Daily Commentary

- Bearish sentiment pushes sunflower oil $20/mt lower
- Black Sea sunflower oil down $50/mt in two days
- Nearby RSO remains supported by tightness

Black Sea sunflower oil declined for a second consecutive session Sept. 8. Platts assessed FOB Ukraine $20/mt lower at $1,299/mt Sept. 8, following a $30/mt reduction in the previous session.

The assessment has fallen $50/mt over two days, reflecting increasingly bearish market sentiment. Weak buying interest continued to weigh on the market, particularly with major importers remaining cautious on forward purchases.

The bearish tone has persisted despite continued uncertainty surrounding Black Sea logistics. Disruptions have constrained Ukrainian export capacity and nearby availability, but expectations for reasonably good sunflower crops in Ukraine and Russia provide a more comfortable underlying supply outlook. With buyers reluctant to chase the market, the prospect of greater new-crop availability is adding to the bearish sentiment, particularly if regional export logistics improve.

European rapeseed oil moved in the opposite direction. RSO FOB Dutch Mills front-month increased €6/mt to €1,221/mt, while the second position rose €3/mt to €1,199/mt. The third and fourth positions were unchanged at €1,187/mt and €1,131/mt, respectively. The front-to-second backwardation widened slightly to €22/mt from €19/mt, while the front position maintained a €90/mt premium over the fourth, indicating continued strength in nearby physical values.

The RSO gains came despite Paris rapeseed futures easing €0.50/mt to €555.75/mt, highlighting the influence of physical market fundamentals on nearby RSO. The Chicago Board of Trade soybean oil rose 0.57 cent/lb to 69.59 cents/lb, potentially improving sunflower oil's relative competitiveness following its recent decline.

Overall, the divergence between sunflower and rapeseed oil remained pronounced. Bearish sentiment and limited buying interest pushed Black Sea sunflower oil lower, while nearby European RSO remained supported by physical tightness. Attention remains focused on whether lower sunflower oil values can stimulate demand and how quickly the new crop Black Sea supply can reach the export market.

- Soybean oil shipments surge to 1mil mt
- India takes nearly half of oil exports

Strong feed-sector demand is driving China's soybean crush to record levels and helping propel soybean oil exports to an unprecedented 1 million mt in marketing year 2025-26, with biofuel-driven demand growth in major markets increasingly creating opportunities for Chinese supplies, according to the latest USDA FAS report on Sept. 7.

Between MY 2024-25 and MY 2025-26, the crush increased from 101 million mt to 106 million mt, up about 4.95%, according to Platts, part of S&P Global Energy.

China's soybean imports are forecast at 112.6 million mt in 2025-26 before easing to 108 million mt in 2026-27, while soybean crushing remains elevated as expanding poultry and livestock production sustains demand for protein meals, the USDA said.

The stronger crush has coincided with relatively weak growth in domestic vegetable oil consumption, generating larger exportable soybean oil surpluses.

The development highlights an increasingly important role for China in the global vegetable oil trade. While Beijing continues pursuing policies aimed at reducing soybean meal inclusion rates and lowering dependence on imported soybeans, commercial feed demand remains sufficiently strong to support crushing volumes.

At the same time, biofuel mandates in markets such as the US and Brazil are tightening vegetable oil supplies elsewhere, creating space for Chinese soybean oil exports when arbitrage opportunities emerge.

Geopolitical alignment

China's feed demand is creating more soybean oil than its food market needs, and biofuel policies elsewhere are helping absorb the surplus.

The USDA expects China's soybean oil exports to reach a record 1 million mt in 2025-26, up sharply from previous expectations, after exports during the first ten months of the marketing year reached 880,000 mt compared with 233,900 mt a year earlier. India for 48.3% of the exported volume.

According to the report, disruptions in sunflower oil trade linked to the Russia-Ukraine conflict helped stimulate demand for competitively priced soybean oil, while growing biofuel demand in Brazil and the US has tightened availability in those markets. The USDA said China could become a more active soybean oil exporter when export margins allow.

The report highlights an increasingly complex import picture in which China's state-owned enterprises continue purchasing US soybeans under commitments made through the Busan trade agreement, while commercial buyers remain heavily focused on South American origins due to the persistence of China's 10% retaliatory tariff on US soybeans.

Feed demand supports crushing

The USDA raised its forecast for total oilseed crushing in 2026-27 to 144.4 million mt, supported by higher soybean crush volumes and continued demand growth from the feed sector. Soybean crushing alone is forecast at 106 million mt in 2025-26 and remains elevated in 2026-27.

Feed demand has remained resilient despite weaker profitability in the hog sector.

Industrial feed production in the first nine months of 2025-26 increased 8.3% year over year, while China's total production of pork, beef, mutton and poultry meat rose 4.3% in the first half of 2026 to 50.5 million mt. Poultry output increased 9.4% year over year, helping sustain demand for protein meals.

Platts, part of S&P Global Energy, assessed soybean CFR China first-month soybeans up $1.19/metric ton day over day at $592.86/mt on Sept. 8. Platts assessed CFR China second-month soybeans up $1.19/mt day over day at $593.96/mt,

EU DATA: MY 2026-27 corn imports rise 35% YOY as of Sept. 6

- Corn exports fall 38% between July 1-Sept. 6
- 2026-27 corn import forecast at 23 million mt
- 2026-27 corn production seen at 51.1 million mt

The EU's corn imports during marketing year 2026-27 (July-June) totaled 3.57 million metric tons as of Sept. 6, up 35% year over year, EU Crop Observatory data showed Sept. 8.

The US was the largest exporter at 1.59 million mt during the period, followed by Ukraine at 1.21 million mt, while the largest importers were Spain at 1.83 million mt and Italy at 399,242 mt.

The EU imported 18.5 million mt corn in MY 2025-26, according to data.

During July 1- Aug. 30, the EU exported 95,995 mt of corn, falling 38% year over year, data showed.

Lithuania was the largest corn exporter into the EU with 31,017 mt followed by France at 20,261 mt and Poland at 18,772 mt. Turkey stood as the largest importer at 35,867 mt, followed by the UK at 28,529 mt.

In MY 2025-26, the bloc supplied 1.87 million mt of corn.

S&P Global Energy CERA forecast the EU's corn imports at 23 million mt and exports at 2 million mt in MY 2026-27.

The European Commission's directorate-general for agriculture and rural development, in its Aug. 27 update, estimated total corn output at 50.3 million mt in MY 2026-27, down 16.8% year over year.

EU corn production is forecast at 51.1 million mt in MY 2026-27, according to CERA.

Platts, part of S&P Global Energy, assessed corn FOB CVB basis Constanta at $276/mt Sept. 7, unchanged day over day.

EU DATA: MY 2026-27 wheat exports fall 5% on year as of Sept. 6

- 2026-27 wheat imports drop 29% on year
- 2026-27 wheat export forecast at 29.5 million mt
- 2026-27 wheat output seen at 133.1 million mt

The EU's wheat exports during marketing year 2026-27 (July-June) totaled 5.06 million metric tons as of Sept. 6, falling 5% year on year, EU Crop Observatory data showed Sept. 8.

Romania was the top exporter at 2.52 million mt during the period, followed by Lithuania at 852,209 mt and Bulgaria at 427,509 mt. Meanwhile, the largest importers were Saudi Arabia at 750,912 mt and Algeria at 584,449 mt.

In MY 2025-26, the EU exported 25 million mt of wheat, according to the data.

Between July 1 and Sept. 6, the EU imported 879,272 mt of wheat, down 29% year on year, the data showed.

Canada and Moldova were the top wheat suppliers to the EU with 285,157 mt and 147,828 mt, respectively. Italy stood as the largest importer at 457,336 mt, followed by Slovenia at 100,180 mt.

In MY 2025-26, the EU bought 6.3 million mt of wheat.

S&P Global Energy CERA estimated the EU's wheat exports at 29.5 million mt and imports at 7.5 million mt in MY 2026-27.

The EU's Directorate-General for Agriculture and Rural Development estimated total wheat output at 132.61 million mt in MY 2026-27, down 8.3% year over year, it said in an Aug. 27 update.

CERA estimated the EU's wheat output at 133.1 million mt in MY 2026-27.

Platts, part of S&P Global Energy, assessed EU 11.5% protein Romania wheat FOB CVB at $290/mt Sept. 7, up $1.5/mt day on day.

CHINA DATA: Aug soybean imports rise 3% MOM to 12.14 million mt

- China Aug soybean imports down 1.1% YOY
- Jan-Aug soybean imports up 1.1% YOY
- Aug vegetable oil imports fall 21% MOM

China imported 12.14 million metric tons of soybeans in August, up 3.1% from July but down 1.1% from a year-earlier, according to preliminary data released by the General Administration of Customs Sept. 8.

China's cumulative soybean imports in January-August totaled 74.11 million mt, up 1.1% from 73.33 million mt a year-earlier, the customs data showed.

The month-on-month increase in August reflected continued arrivals of Brazilian cargoes purchased earlier in the year, China-based trade sources said.

About 13.6 million mt of soybeans were en route to China as of Sept. 8, including 12.4 million mt from Brazil, 473,307 mt from Argentina, 381,938 mt from Uruguay and 274,528 mt from the US, according to data from S&P Global Commodities at Sea.

Soybean inventories at major Chinese ports were nearing 9.4 million mt, according to a Sept. 4 S&P Global Energy CERA report.

Brazil exported 7 million mt of soybeans to China in August, accounting for 71.4% of its total soybean exports during the month, according to data released by the Secretariat of Foreign Trade on Sept. 4.

Chinese state-owned enterprises have continued to buy US soybeans under the Busan trade agreement.

As of Sept. 3, China's known commitments for US soybeans in marketing year 2026-27 totaled 8.473 million mt, according to calculations by Platts, part of S&P Global Energy, based on US Department of Agriculture data.

Commercial Chinese buyers, meanwhile, continue to favor South American supplies amid China's 10% tariff on US soybeans.

As of Sept. 3, US soybeans traded at a premium to Brazilian supplies before tariffs, but an additional 10% tariff rendered US cargoes uncompetitive for Chinese private crushers, according to a Sept. 4 CERA report.

A Chinese soybean trader said demand for US soybeans is expected to remain steady in the near term.

"For Brazil soybeans demand, it will depend on the crush margins in the coming week," the trader said.

China is the world's largest soybean importer and accounts for about 60% of global soybean imports, according to USDA data.

China's soybean imports are expected to increase 1.9% year over year to 110 million mt in the marketing year 2025-26 (October-September), according to CERA estimates.

Platts assessed CFR China first-month soybeans at $591.67/mt Sept. 7, down $2.11/mt day over day.

Vegetable oil imports

China's imports of edible vegetable oils in August stood at 463,000 mt, down 21.4% from 589,000 mt in July, customs data showed.

Total vegetable oil imports by the world's second-largest importer in January-August stood at 4.48 million mt, compared with 4.45 million mt a year earlier, according to Chinese customs data.

Combined Chinese stocks of palm oil, soybean oil and rapeseed oil at ports stood at 2.48 million mt as of Aug. 21, up 2.9% from 2.41 million mt on Aug. 14, data from traders showed.

India's edible oil import rise clogs ports, slows fresh purchases

- Port congestion delays 300,000 mt unloading
- August imports between 1.5 million-1.9 million mt
- Refiners cut October purchases amid glut

A rise in India's edible oil imports has overwhelmed storage capacity at key ports, delaying cargo unloading and raising the prospect that the world's largest vegetable oil buyer could scale back purchases in the coming months, three traders told Platts, part of S&P Global Energy, Sept. 7.

At the Kandla port on India's west coast, at least nine vessels carrying about 300,000 metric tons of edible oils are waiting to discharge, with some cargoes facing delays of up to 10 days because shore tanks are full. Haldia port in eastern India is also experiencing congestion, although to a lesser extent, a trader from Saveraa International, an edible oil brokerage, said.

The bottleneck follows aggressive buying by Indian refiners, which pushed August edible oil imports to between 1.5 million metric tons and 1.9 million mt, according to various market sources.

There were 587 vegetable oil arrivals on Indian ports, amounting to 1.9 million mt in August, Mukesh Goyal, director at vegetable oil trader Oyal Makler, said. The import number is the highest in 20 months, and 29% higher year over year from 1.47 million mt in August 2025, Goyal said.

Crude soybean oil imports are expected to have overtaken crude palm oil imports at 858,706 mt versus CPO's 793,636 mt in August, Goyal said Sept. 7.

High imports push India's veg oil port stocks to 3-year high

Source: Solvents Extractors' Association of India

Refiners booked large volumes of August and September cargoes because prompt shipments were cheaper than deferred deliveries and in anticipation of stronger demand during the festival season, traders said.

However, consumption has been slower than expected, leaving refiners and port operators struggling to find storage space.

The congestion is expected to curb India's appetite for vegetable oils in the near term, according to two India-based traders who spoke to Platts on the condition of anonymity.

Vegetable oil analyst Tushar Agarwal said refiners are likely to reduce October purchases of palm oil and soybean oil while they work through existing inventories and clear the backlog at ports.

Soybean oil was on discount, so people bought heavily, but demand has been poor, so offtake from importers is slow. At least four tankers are stuck at ports, and importers are anxious because if the shipments stay stuck, they will default, Agarwal said Sept. 8.

India's port stocks of vegetable oils had hit 1.1 million mt at the end of July, the highest since October 2023, industry trade body the Solvents Extractors' Association of India had said in August while releasing import data for July.

The SEA will release import numbers for August by Sept. 15.

Platts assessed the price of crude palm oil CFR West Coast India at $1,285/metric ton Sept. 7, up 0.6% day over day.

Platts Ags EMEA Wheat Daily Rationale

Platts assessed the Milling Wheat Marker at $210/metric ton on Sept. 8, down by $4/mt from Sept. 7. Russian 12.5% handysize wheat, assessed at $210/mt, was the most competitive wheat out of the three components of the Milling Wheat Marker, which also includes Ukraine 11.5% at $211.31/mt when adding August's quality normalization of $2.31/mt, to account for its lower protein content, and CVB 12.5% wheat assessed at $300.50/mt on the day. The structure between the first half and the second half of October was assessed as flat. This reflects the Platts assessment window from Oct. 6-20.

Platts assessed Black Sea wheat (Russian deepsea, 12.5% protein) at $210/mt on Sept. 8, down by $4/mt, below an offer at $211/mt for October shipment. Market participants said market activity was limited from deep sea ports amid execution risk. The structure between the first half and second half of October was assessed as flat. This reflects the Platts assessment window from Oct. 6-20.

Platts assessed Black Sea wheat (Ukraine deepsea, 11.5% protein) at $209/mt on Sept. 8, down by $4/mt. Trading activity in Ukraine out of POC ports remains limited amid strikes on port and export infrastructure. The structure between the first half and the second half of October was assessed as flat. This reflects the Platts assessment window from Oct. 6-20.
