Commentary and Analysis

Wheat

Platts European Wheat Daily Commentary

- Ukrainian ports see minimal trading activity
- French wheat production forecast drops

The Black Sea wheat market was mostly unchanged on July 21 amid minimal FOB trades.

FOB buyers of Russian wheat bid at $234/metric ton, compared to offers at $239/mt.

Ukrainian wheat similarly saw limited trading in the aftermath of port strikes.

One seller offered at $233/mt for the second half of September, while another seller of Ukrainian wheat said there was no market.

Some coasters were offered via the Danube to Egypt at $262/mt, compared to bids at $255/mt. Meanwhile, CIF sellers for Handysize cargoes stood at $270/mt.

Traders looked at the alternative wheat flows out of Izmail and Reni, with a third seller saying the flows were minimal, as the market was not very defined.

Other handy indications to Marmara were at $250/mt, buyers said, as the coasters market remained inactive following strikes at the Kerch Strait.

Elsewhere, on the CIF market, Tunisia tendered to buy wheat on July 21, buying at a range of $270-$293.69/mt for August shipments from trading companies GrainStar, Amber and Casillo, a source close to the tender process said.

The CPT Constanta market saw bids at $247/mt, compared to FOB bids at $260/mt for the 11.5% specification.

Meanwhile, the French wheat market fell marginally on the day, with both FPB and CPT falling €1.25/mt. The country's harvest was nearing completion, reported at 92% as of July 13, compared to 66% at the same time in 2025, according to FranceAgrimer.

The latest French Statistics report revised French soft wheat production forecasts lower, with yields impacted by extreme heat. Production is now estimated at 32 million mt, compared to 33.4 million mt in 2025.

Platts Asia Wheat Daily Commentary

- Australian wheat closes mixed
- Thai buyer issues tender for Aug-Oct feed wheat

Australian Premium White was stable day over day at $287/metric ton July 21, while Australian Standard White with no protein guarantee inched $1/mt higher at $280/mt, tracking firmer value indications.

Indications remained elevated in Western Australia, with little bearish news on the horizon, according to an Australian trade source.

"Not sure it's [prices] going to get any better at the moment though," said the same source.

A Southeast Asian buyer said Ukrainian containerized wheat offers were still being shown in the market and remained more competitive than Australian wheat prices.

Meanwhile, regional demand for Canadian milling wheat was muted as flat prices recently hit two-year highs, tracking rallies on the Minneapolis Grain Exchange, with CFR offers now in the $340s/mt CFR range, according to an Asian grain trader.

"But if this level [$340s/mt CFR] sustains, and Australian at current levels, then [we] should get some [buyer] movement," said the same source.

A Thai buyer issued an international buy tender for feed wheat over August, September, and October shipment late July 21, said two trade sources based in Bangkok. The results of the tender were not available at the time of writing.

Platts Canada Wheat Daily Commentary

- Canada wheat prices rise amid slow demand
- High flat prices stall consumer buying interest
- Producers remain reluctant to sell inventory

Platts assessed Canada Western Red Spring Wheat 13.5% FOB Vancouver 30-45 days forward at $311.68/metric ton on July 21, up $4.04/mt from July 20, with limited price discovery as futures increased, elevated flat prices continued to slow buying interest, and producers remained reluctant sellers.

December Minneapolis Hard Red Spring wheat futures contract (MWZ) continued elevating, settling at 728.25 cents/bu, up 11 cents day over day.

One Canadian trader said consumer demand had stalled at current price levels. "Consumers are paralyzed by the high flat price and shippers need more producer selling in order to offer with any sense of confidence they won't lose too much money in execution," the trader said, highlighting the lack of liquidity in the market.

Many market sources said there were few fresh offers for nearby shipments. One trader said no 13.5% protein CWRS offers had been heard, while 13.8% protein CWRS was offered around 125Z over the December Minneapolis wheat futures contract. However, the trader added, "I fully expect it to drop to 110 MWZ." The same trader added that 14% protein Pacific Northwest North Spring wheat (PNWNS) was valued at 160 MWZ or higher, leaving a 35 cents/bu premium over 13.8% CWRS and creating "huge incentives to switch to CWRS if they could."

A US trader described the market as "pretty quiet," adding that basis had remained firm despite the recent rally in futures. According to the trader, the resilience in basis likely reflects differences in crop conditions between Canada and the US. "This heat and lack of moisture is taking yield out daily, unfortunately. Not going to be a disaster by any means, but not good," the trader said.

A fourth Canadian trader also said, "I'm not seeing much different," reinforcing the broadly unchanged tone across the market.

Another US trader also pointed to geopolitical tensions as a supporting factor for the market. "The war between Ukraine and Russia is not helping prices," the trader said, suggesting the ongoing conflict continues to lend support to wheat values by maintaining uncertainty around Black Sea exports.

Platts Asia Corn Daily Commentary

- South Korean tenders draw higher Nov-Dec offers
- US PNW supply tightens, buyers shift to South America

Asian corn market activity picked up on July 21 with two South Korean buyers opening tenders that attracted significantly higher offers for November-December arrival cargoes, while activity for October arrivals was silent.

Platts assessed feed quality corn CFR Northeast Asia down $2.50/mt at $272/mt for cargoes arriving over Oct. 19 to Nov. 18.

The two South Korean feed millers opened tenders for a total of four cargoes for Nov. 30, Dec. 10, Dec. 20 and Dec. 25 arrival, respectively.

The most competitive offers, in order, were $276.95/mt CFR, $277/mt CFR, $277.23/mt CFR and $279.62/mt CFR, while no deal was reported as of Platts Market on Close assessment process at 4.30 pm Singapore time.

Platts Corn Arbitrage Price Matrix showed CFR Northeast Asia basis replacement levels at $269.16/mt for the most competitive origin, Argentina's September shipments and $273.96/mt for Brazilian origin September shipments. US Pacific Northwest corn replacement levels were at $285.23/mt CFR.

Market participants reported a lack of availability for US PNW corn, while the few remaining offers were "super expensive," according to a Singapore-based trader. The trader also noted that "some are switching back to South American corn, all the PNW side is allocating for soybeans."

"It should all be South American corn [at the South Korean tenders]," a second Singapore-based trader said.

US Pacific Northwest corn basis offer indications for September shipment were reported higher day over day at 158 cents/bu over December (Z) Chicago Board of Trade futures contract.

In Vietnam, South American-origin corn offers were reported at $269/mt CFR Vietnam for September shipment partial cargoes.

Platts Latin America Corn Daily Commentary

- Domestic market prices increase
- Winter corn reaches 49.8% in Brazil

Latin America FOB corn prices rose on July 21, tracking Chicago Board of Trade futures prices.

Argentine FOB Up River premiums for September loading and the Brazilian FOB Santos premiums for September loading were unchanged during the day.

The US dollar to Brazilian real exchange rate stood at Real 5.0873/$1 as of 5:30 pm Brasilia time, down 0.36% day over day.

In Brazil's domestic market, prices rose in the Sorriso and Rio Verde regions, while they were steady in Maringá region.

In the Rio Verde region, the producers who were actively selling in the market were mainly those who need cash and want to free up storage space, according to one market participant.

On the spot market, a trade was reported in the Sorriso region in Mato Grosso state, along with another in Aparecida do Taboado in Mato Grosso do Sul state.

Winter corn harvest reached 49.8% of the nationwide area as of July 17, lower from 55.5% at the same period of the 2024-2025 season, according to data published by the Brazilian agricultural agency Conab on July 20.

The harvest in Mato Grosso state was advancing, and productivity remained positive, Conab reported. In Paraná, harvesting started to pick up, but high soil moisture has prevented greater progress in field operations. In Mato Grosso do Sul,

Platts US Corn Daily Commentary

- Outright prices rise on dry weather
- Export basis remains firm on day

The US corn market saw outright prices rise on July 21 with increasing export basis and futures, amid dry weather forecasts, slow farmer selling reported and the escalation of the conflict in the Black Sea region.

Platts assessed the outright price for CIF New Orleans for July shipment $1.25/metric ton higher on the day at $218/mt, while the outright price for August shipment also increased $1.25/mt to $220.35/mt.

Platts assessed basis for CIF NOLA for July shipment was at 101 cents/bushel over the September (U) corn futures contract, while the basis for August shipment was at 107 cents/bu.

Platts assessed the outright price for FOB Gulf for September shipment $2.46/mt up on the day at $224.31/mt. Platts assessed basis for FOB Gulf for September shipment at 117 cents/bu over the September (U) corn futures contract.

The conflict between Russia and Ukraine in the Black Sea region, dry weather forecasts and slow farmer selling have been supporting the Chicago Board of Trade futures market, sources said.

The September (U) corn contract increased 3.25 cents to 452.75 cents/bu on July 21, while the December (Z) contract climbed 2.25 cents to 475.25 cents/bu.

“There is no reason for corn to be bearish,” a trader in the FOB Gulf market said. “It costs US farmers close to $5/bu to produce corn, and because of this, they aren’t as inclined to sell. It would cost them $8/bu in the worst-case scenario with the drought impacting yields, which is another reason for corn to be rallying, not to mention Black Sea.”

A trader in the CIF New Orleans market said the market firmed due to the dry weather forecast.

Export market sources said expectations regarding potential future purchases of US corn from China were building.

“There’s a huge export program,” the trader in the FOB Gulf market said. “There’s also anticipation that China may start buying US corn again.”

Current Chinese tariffs on US corn “are roughly 10% for the first 7.2 million mt, depending on the customer classification,” the source added.

The US Department of Agriculture published its weekly Crop Progress report showing that 59% of the corn planted in the 18 main producing states was silking on July 19.

About 51% of the crop was reported in good condition, 2% down from the previous week, while 24% was in fair condition, 16% in excellent condition, and 7% and 2% in poor and very poor conditions, respectively.

Platts European Corn Daily Commentary

- Danube route faces low water draft navigation issues
- Italian buyers resist high prices with ample supplies

The Black Sea corn market was bullish on July 21, with buying interest heard from the European market.

Day over day, a bid for August-September shipment was heard at $270-$275/mt for CIF ARAG.

With the conflict escalating, traders anticipate possible new-crop corn flows through Romanian ports via the Danube.

A seller from Ukraine said, “It might happen, but it depends on whether Ukrainian farmers are willing to pay for such logistics, as it would mean significantly lower prices for them.”

Another seller from Ukraine said, “Potentially, yes, but the water draft on the Danube is extremely low. Barges are stuck, and there is no navigation,” highlighting that shipments could be difficult during the summer months due to dry weather across the EU.

In the destination market, importers from Italy said there were some CIF offers last week, but those are currently absent from the market. An importer from Italy said, “On Friday, there were offers. Ukrainian exporters need to exit in some way.”

The importer also said buyers were reluctant to pay elevated prices, noting that nearby supply remained sufficient despite potential disruptions to scheduled loadings or contracts. Comfortable inventory levels and weak consumption have limited urgency in the market. “The market is also well covered by the US and Brazil up to September; then we will see,” the importer added.

Meanwhile, the spread between the POC and CVB market increased with higher freight amid attacks. However, liquidity of the old crop in Romania remains very low, according to traders.

- Limited Chinese demand overnight
- CBOT futures gain on hotter, drier US weather outlook

Platts assessed the CFR China soybean month-one September shipment up $8.73/metric ton day over day at $544.27/mt on July 21, while the basis was up 10 cents/bushel at 255 cents/bu over November (X) Chicago Board of Trade futures.

Overnight, China-based soybean trade sources said trading liquidity for CFR China was slower.

Chinese state reserves were heard making inquiries about US soybeans, though no purchases were confirmed, a China-based soybean trader said.

“Brazilian cash basis level for November fell about 10 cents/bu on the day. Despite the decline, Brazilian soybeans remain competitively priced relative to other export origins,” said a Singapore-based soybean trader, adding that buying interest from Chinese commercial buyers remained limited, as crush margins in China were unfavorable.

Another China-based soybean trader said Brazilian sellers, however, remained reluctant to lower their offers, keeping nearby shipment premiums elevated.

CBOT soybean futures continued to draw support from a hotter and drier US weather outlook for its key cropping regions, the Singapore-based trader said.

The domestic crushing volume in China is estimated to be at about 2.4 million mt this week, according to a third China-based soybean trader.

- SOYBEX FOB Santos rise for September dates
- FOB Paranaguá posts strong activity for new crop

The SOYBEX FOB Santos contract for September loading increased on July 21, supported by stronger premiums, while lower Chicago Board of Trade futures partially capped the gains.

The CBOT September (U) contract fell 5 cents/bushel to $12.1050/bushel. While certain US export optimism remained on the radar, futures faced a correction movement after the sharp gains observed on July 20, analysts said.

The FOB Paranaguá paper market recorded strong activity for new crop shipments, with at least 40,000-50,000 mt

- FOB Gulf and CIF NOLA bases rise on day
- China demand supports market: sources

The US soybeans market continues to be fueled by participation from China, with the FOB Gulf and CIF New Orleans bases rising on July 21, amid falling futures a day after a rally.

Platts, part of S&P Global Energy, assessed SOYBEX FOB New Orleans for September shipment 55 cents down from July 20 at $494.85/metric ton. Platts assessed basis for FOB Gulf for September shipment increased 2 cents day over day to 124 cents/bushel over the November (X) soybeans futures contract.

Platts assessed the outright price for CIF New Orleans for July shipment 92 cents down from the previous business day at $493.28/mt. Platts assessed basis for CIF NOLA for July shipment rose 4 cents day over day to 123 cents/bu over the August (Q) soybeans futures contract.

China was heard actively enquiring in the US market on the day, but no trades were heard from participants or sources. Despite this, demand from China supported the FOB Gulf market on the day, sources say.

"I believe China is [active]," a trader in the FOB Gulf market said. "I don't know if anything was bought, though."

On July 20 the US Department of Agriculture confirmed the sale of 264,000 mt for delivery to China during the 2026-27 marketing year, and 110,000 mt for delivery to unknown destinations. No trades were reported by the Department on July 21.

A day after a rally and contrary to the upward movement in bases, CBOT August (Q) soybean futures contract fell 6.5 cents on July 21 to 1219.5 cents/bu, while November (X) contract fell 3.5 cents to 1222.75 cents/bu.

Sources pointed out that falling futures could be due to better-than-expected conditions of the soybean crop, reported by the USDA on July 20.

"I think yesterday's crop conditions set the market back as everyone was expecting them to be worse", a trader in the CIF NOLA market said. "And soybeans actually improved while corn only went down one percentage point."

According to the Crop Progress weekly report, 66% of the soybeans planted in the 18 main producing states were blooming on July 19. This is 16 percentage points up from the previous week, and 6 points above the 2021-25 average.

Platts Latin America Soybean Meal Daily Commentary

- FOB prices increase on higher CBOT
- FOB Paranaguá strengthens for September

South American soybean meal FOB prices rose on July 21 amid higher Chicago Board of Trade futures, as the September (U) contract settled at $324.30/short ton, up $3.10/st.

Outright values in Brazil's FOB Paranaguá were further supported by stronger cash basis levels reported. Parcels for September traded at $5/st and $6/st over the CBOT benchmarks, with some deals also heard for November and December dates.

Sources attributed the bullish movement in the Brazilian paper market to poor margins, especially for crushers in Paraná and Mato Grosso, where industry activity might be halted in the near term.

Regarding Argentina's FOB Up River, subdued activity was reported, with no trades heard.

"We believe that the [premium] rise in Brazil, plus the CBOT still being very volatile, has been hampering the trader from making a decision," an Argentine-based source said, referring to the general slowness in the FOB Up River cargo market.

- Dutch soybean meal sees August-September spread
- Spanish feed markets remain quiet on low demand

Northern Europe

The soybean meal market in the Netherlands was slow for August, but September is active, sources said on July 21.

A Netherlands-based trader said there was a spread between August and September offers, as they anticipated more meals arriving. There was also sufficient supply of mid-protein meals in September, more than in August, which reduced the price for September.

According to a Netherlands-based corn broker, a trade for the old Ukrainian crop was concluded at Eur258/metric ton, interior Holland. The broker noted that the freight was unknown in this case.

Southern Europe

The Spanish corn and soybean meal markets were quiet, with lower demand.

"Very little action these days," a Spain-based trader said. There were offers for barley in Tarragona, whereas in Lleida the offer was about Eur228/mt.

Platts US Distiller Grains DDGS Daily Commentary

- Market stays quiet amid firm grain futures
- October premium prompts September buying shift
- Barge freight expected to remain tight at harvest

The US dried distillers' grains with solubles market remained quiet July 21, with participants reporting limited trading activity while stronger grain futures and firm barge freight continued to support deferred values.

Platts, part of S&P Global Energy, assessed CIF New Orleans dried distillers' grains with solubles barges at $199/short ton for the July shipment period July 21. The Chicago DDGS truck market for the August delivery period was assessed at $178/st, and the South California rail market for the July delivery period was assessed at $228/st.

One trader said the recent strength in corn and soybean futures has helped support DDGS prices. "I think that's one reason, futures have moved higher," the trader said. The source said that DDGS continues to carry a $10-$15/st premium for October-November-December, prompting some buyers to shift purchases into September to avoid higher deferred values. to buy more in September to avoid the October premium, but that could push September prices higher," the trader said.

The trader added that the market remains driven primarily by weather uncertainty. "It's a weather market for now," the source said, explaining that DDGS competitiveness will continue to depend on its value relative to soybean meal and corn. "If soybean meal rises more than DDGS, then DDGS should become the preferred option." Regarding a tropical system moving through the Gulf, the trader said only minor logistical impacts are expected. "I don't think there will be much change in the CIF market because of the storm. It's not a hurricane, just a tropical storm."

A broker also described a slow start to the day. "Quiet day so far out here," the broker said. "Some soybean meal traded yesterday. Didn't see much of anything on DDGS." The broker added that market participation remained light despite firmer values. "Engagement level feels kind of low this morning," the source said.

The broker said that barge freight is expected to remain firm as harvest approaches. "Barge freight is going to be rough," the broker said. "There is so much corn and soybeans going down the river come harvest." The source added that higher freight costs could pressure plant netbacks while expressing hope that more domestic feeders return to DDGS if relative values improve.

Another trader said cash activity remains limited despite support from the futures market. "Things are firmer in sympathy with the board yesterday,” the trader said. “I don’t think much cash has transacted.” The trader added that new-crop DDGS values will likely need to continue strengthening alongside corn, while barge freight also remains firm.

- Indian buyers prefer soy over palm oil: trader
- Indonesia’s B50 mandate will not disrupt CPO exports: ministry

The Asian palm oil market fell July 21 as palm oil futures on Bursa Malaysia eased following a decline in Chinese soybean oil and other alternative vegetable oils.

The benchmark palm oil contract for October delivery on the Bursa Malaysia Commodity Exchange declined MR33/mt day over day to MR4,609/mt on July 21.

The benchmark RBD Palm Olein for October delivery on the Dalian Commodity Exchange fell RMB 134/mt day over day to RMB 9,308/mt on July 21.

The benchmark Soybean Oil for October delivery on the Dalian Commodity Exchange fell RMB 49/mt day over day to RMB 8,579/mt on July 21.

The Indian market was slow July 21 amid lower buying interest in palm oil compared to soybean oil.

CPO CFR WC India was heard traded at $1,227.50/mt for July loading for 1,000-2,000 mt.

“Buyers still prefer soybean oil compared to palm oil now due to the narrowing spreads,” an India-based trader said.

Platts assessed the CPO CFR WC India price at $1,225/mt on July 21 for August loading, down $10/mt from July 20, while September shipment was $10/mt higher than August.

The Indonesian market was slow and no trades were heard.

“Bids and asks have narrowed slightly, but buyers are not making their moves yet,” a Singapore-based trader said.

Meanwhile, Indonesia’s Coordinating Ministry for Economic Affairs said July 21 that the B50 biodiesel mandate will not reduce the country’s overall crude palm oil exports. The government’s confidence is based on the successful transition from B35 to B40 in 2024, Dida Gardera, special staff for Connectivity and Service Development, said July 21. Strong exports remain an important pillar of Indonesia’s biodiesel industry, Gardera said.

Platts assessed CPO FOB Indonesia at $1,187.50/mt on July 21 for July loading, down $15/mt from July 20, while September shipment was $7.50/mt higher than August.

Platts assessed RBDPS FOB Indonesia at $1,062.50/mt on July 21 for July loading, down $7.50/mt from July 20, while September shipment was $7.50/mt higher than August.

Platts assessed PFAD FOB Indonesia at $997.50/mt on July 21 for July loading, down $17.50/mt from July 20, while September shipment was $7.50/mt higher than August.

Platts Latin America Soybean Oil Daily Commentary

- Brazil soybean oil prices rise on firm basis
- September loading gains as August loses liquidity
- Crush margins drive need for higher oil prices

Brazilian soybean oil prices for September loading rose July 21 as liquidity shifted from August into September with the ANEC contract entering its nomination window, while market participants expect basis levels to strengthen in the near term.

Platts assessed the Brazilian soybean oil FOB Paranaguá price for September loading at $1,192.92/mt July 21, up $6.39/mt from July 20. October loading was assessed at $1,177.05/mt on the first day of the assessment.

Chicago Board of Trade September soybean oil futures settled at 73.41 cents/lb, down 0.41 cent/lb, or 0.56%, from the previous session.

In Brazil, September loading basis firmed during the session as liquidity in August thinned.

“August is starting to become illiquid,” a Brazil-based trader said. With 10 days remaining in the month, the ANEC contract has entered its nomination window, prompting traders to roll positions into September.

Market participants also pointed to weaker September crush economics as support for soybean oil values. “The products, especially oil, will have to pay more to keep the crush running,” another trader said.

A third trader said CBOT soybean oil futures could fall further during the week amid fund profit-taking following recent rallies, potentially leading to additional basis strengthening.

Several market participants said August and September were still heard at parity in basis terms.

In Argentina, September bids and offers narrowed near the market close, although the Argentine market remained softer than Brazil’s, according to a market participant.

Platts assessed the Argentine soybean oil FOB Up River price for September loading at $1,177.49/mt July 21, on the first day of the assessment.

European vegetable oil markets remained firm, with deferred rapeseed oil strengthening further while sunflower oil continued to trade unchanged amid persistent uncertainty surrounding Black Sea exports. RSO FOB Dutch Mills front-month held at Eur 1,246/mt, while the second position increased Eur 14 to Eur 1,208/mt. Third position remained unchanged at Eur 1,189/mt, while fourth position gained Eur 9 to Eur 1,190/mt. FOB Black Sea sunflower oil was assessed stable at $1,379/mt, reflecting a market where geopolitical risk continues to offset subdued physical trading.

Activity in the Black Sea sunflower oil market remains extremely limited as participants await greater clarity on export logistics. A source based in Ukraine said there was “nothing clear,” adding that “everyone [is] waiting to see how vessels will book and come.” The continued uncertainty over vessel availability and willingness to call at Ukrainian ports is preventing both buyers and sellers from establishing firm September loading indications.

The lack of forward visibility is constraining price discovery despite stable assessments. According to the same source, “too early to today predict,” highlighting that market participants remain reluctant to commit to September business until shipping conditions become clearer. Recent attacks on Black Sea export infrastructure and elevated insurance and freight risks continue to cloud the outlook, leaving market participants more focused on logistical developments than on underlying supply and demand fundamentals.

For Europe, the market remains supported by deferred strength in rapeseed oil while sunflower oil continues to be anchored by geopolitical uncertainty. The rise in deferred rapeseed oil values suggests participants continue to build in a premium for forward supply, while the absence of meaningful sunflower oil trading reflects the market’s wait-and-see approach towards Black Sea logistics. Until vessel bookings normalize and export routes become more predictable, physical sunflower oil activity is likely to remain subdued despite relatively stable price assessments.

US DATA: Corn silking advances to 59% by July 19, outpacing five-year average

- North Carolina leads US corn silking at 96%
- Corn in dough stage reaches 13%, in line with 2025
- Conditions ease to 67% good-excellent by July 19

Corn silking in the 18 major US corn-producing states reached 59% as of July 19, up from 34% a week earlier and ahead of 53% a year earlier and the five-year average of 54%, according to the US Department of Agriculture’s Crop Progress report July 20.

North Carolina led the corn silking progress among the producing states at 96%, followed by Tennessee at 95% and Texas at 87%.

US corn in the dough stage reached 13%, in line with a year earlier and above the five-year average of 11%, according to the USDA.

As a larger share of the US corn crop enters pollination, attention is shifting to near term weather risks, US-based trade sources said.

USDA rated 67% of the US corn crop in good to excellent condition as of July 19, down from 68% a week earlier and 74% a year earlier. Poor to very poor ratings edged up to 9% from 8% the previous week, USDA data showed July 20.

The largest week-over-week declines were in North Dakota and Colorado, where corn rated good to excellent fell 10 percentage points to 61% and 40%, respectively. South Dakota’s rating declined 8 points to 56%, while top producer Iowa remained among the strongest states at 80% good to excellent.

The US corn harvested area was estimated at 87.4 million acres in 2026, down 4.2% from 2025, according to the USDA’s acreage report released June 30.

US farmers are projected to harvest corn across 87.8 million acres in the marketing year 2026-27 (September-August) and produce 16.19 billion bushels, down 4.9% year over year, according to S&P Global Energy CERA data.

In its World Agricultural Supply and Demand Estimates report released July 10, the USDA forecast US corn production at 16 billion bushels in MY 2026-27, down 6% year over year, with yields seen at 183 bu/acre, down 1.9% year over year.

The US is expected to export 3.2 billion bushels of corn in MY 2026-27, down 3.8% year over year, the USDA said.

Platts, part of S&P Global Energy, assessed US corn CIF New Orleans at $216.75/metric ton on July 20, up $1.90/mt day over day.

Thailand buys first US corn cargo, outlook for further imports uncertain: sources

- Thailand buys first US corn cargo at $270/mt
- Further imports remain uncertain amid quotas
- Local Thai corn prices soften to $360-$390/mt

Thailand, on July 16, purchased a US-origin corn cargo from trader Cargill, although further imports remain uncertain due to the quotas, according to four industry sources on July 21.

The deal was for the September shipment with an estimated deal price below $270/mt CFR LO Thailand, according to several broker sources on July 21, although no official price was announced.

Cargill did not respond to a request for official comment from Platts, part of S&P Global Energy, on July 21.

Several Thai feed millers had opened a US corn import tender earlier on July 15, but passed on all offers. The tender was for a cargo of 62,300 mt for September shipment and 59,000 mt for October shipment.

“We also competed [to offer at the Thai tender]. It was the first US corn deal to Thailand, [we offered at the] low $270’s/mt CFR,” said a regional grains trader.

Industry sources, however, were unsure about further imports of US corn due to the need to purchase 3 units of local Thai corn for every 1 unit of imported corn.

“The quota is not enough to import 1 million mt this year. We are still negotiating this,” a Thai feed miller source said.

Local Thai corn prices have “softened, but at a slower pace, given the absence of major buyers purchasing corn for 2 weeks to clear corn silos and storage,” said a broker.

“Now Thai corn price is Baht 12-13/kg ($360-$390/mt), while US corn to our feed mill is Baht 9.5/kg ($280/mt),” said the feed miller source.

Platts assessed feed quality corn CFR Northeast Asia down $2.5/mt at $272/mt on July 21 for cargoes arriving over Oct. 19 to Nov. 18.

Assessment Rationale

Grains

Platts Ags EMEA Wheat Daily Rationale

Platts assessed the Milling Wheat Marker at $235.25/metric ton on July 21, unchanged from the previous assessment.

Ukraine 11.5% handysize wheat, assessed at $228.5/mt, was normalized to the nearest 25 cents of $235.13/mt when adding June’s quality normalization of $6.63/mt, to account for its lower protein content, and it was the most competitive wheat out of the three components of the Milling Wheat Marker, which also includes CVB 12.5%, assessed at $269.5/mt, and Russian 12.5% wheat assessed at $237.5/mt on the day. The structure between the second half of August and the first half of September. was assessed as flat. This reflects the Platts assessment window from Aug. 18 - Sept. 1.

Platts assessed Black Sea wheat (Russian deepsea, 12.5% protein) unchanged at $237.5/mt on July 21 amid minimal FOB activity in the market after strikes at Russian ports. The market was below an offer at $239/mt and above a bid at $234/mt. The structure between the second half of August and the first half of September was assessed as flat. This reflects the Platts assessment window from Aug. 18 - Sept. 1.

Platts assessed Black Sea wheat (Ukraine deepsea, 11.5% protein) unchanged at $228.5/mt on July 21. Trading activities remain low in Ukraine amid attacks on ports and infrastructure. The structure between the second half of August and the first half of September was assessed as flat. This reflects the Platts assessment window from Aug 18 - Sept. 1.

Exclusions: No market data was excluded from the July 21 Black Sea wheat assessments.

Platts Asia Wheat Daily Assessment Rationale

Platts assessed Australian Premium White wheat unchanged at $287/metric ton FOB Kwinana July 21 for cargoes loading between Sept. 19 and Oct. 19, above an indicative bid at $280/mt and under the lowest indicative offer of $288/mt.

Platts assessed Australian Standard White wheat with no protein guarantee up $1/mt at $280/mt for cargoes loading over the same period, tracking higher indicative value at $280/mt.

This narrows the spread between Australian Premium White and Australian Standard White with no protein guarantee to $7/mt.
